The Largest Down Retailer Store

Bought your pillows & comforters elsewhere? Guaranteed you overpaid!!!

CAVEAT EMPTOR (BUYER BEWARE)

Don't be misled by advertisements for European goose down comforters at supposedly "SALE PRICES". We'll show you that most of those ads do not represent good values at all. Just because these advertisements are from major department stores - do not be fooled-all down is not alike.

The quality of goose down is measured in fill power (also known as loft). Fill Power is the amount of cubic inches one ounce of down will fill. Our 800 plus Siberian Goose Down will fill between 800 and 850 cubic inches of space. "The Company Store" catalog always lists the fill power of their goose down. Bring in their catalog and we'll generally save you 50% off their prices.

Goose Down Comforters are an investment, with proper care a fine quality comforter will last a life time. Our high quality 100% cotton shells, or tickings, are divided into baffle boxes. The baffle box has a mesh channel separating the top from the bottom of the comforter. The baffle allows the down to give you maximum loft without collecting in one section of the comforter. We do not cater to the consumer that is more interested in price than quality. Our most valuable asset is our customer. We will only sell a product that we believe to be the highest value at the best price. Cheap low quality down should fill garage cans not pillows and comforters. All our goose down pillows and comforters contain 100% goose down even though it is legal to combine 70% down and 30% feathers and label the item 100% goose down. Remember feathers are those things with quills, down is similar to tiny balls of cotton, absolutely no hard quill. Our goose down comforters and pillows are machine washable because they only contain down.

The larger the individual down cluster the higher the fill power. The higher the fill power the better the comforter will insulate thus providing more comfort to you. Since you are spending 1/3 of your life in bed it should be as luxurious as possible. - Why not?

Shortcut

How To Get Around That Nasty Little Traffic Jam Between Wainscott And Shinnecock

By Dan Rattiner

One of the great advantages of living in the Hamptons for a long period of time is that you know all the shortcuts. I'm not talking about the obvious-to-everybody shortcuts, such as the ones published by Jodi DellaFemina in her book Jodi's Shortcuts, but the really special ones.

For example, you know the traffic jam that begins on the Montauk Highway in downtown Wainscott and extends through Bridgehampton and Water Mill to Shinnecock? It's a bear, isn't it? Ten miles straight from hell that at certain times of day takes the better part of an hour.

How do you get around it? Easy. Just put your blinker on by the Seafood Shop and Twice Upon a Bagel across from the Wainscott Post Office and turn north on Wainscott Northwest Road. No here, is there? You breeze along, past the big sandpit on your right and the WDI Factory (Walt Disney Imagineering where they make visual effects for theme park rides and movies), until the road makes a T just past the railroad tracks. In front of you is the airport. Don't make a left. That's a dead end. You make a right, go one block on Industrial Road, turn left at the entrance to

ARF (The Animal Rescue Fund) – why does everything have these secret initials? – and then head north again, this time on Daniel's Hole Road, going past the entrance to the airport, past the EHITC (East Hampton Indoor Tennis Club) and then another mile with the road twisting until you get to the Sag Harbor Turnpike. Make a left. Then go straight, all the way to Sag Harbor, across the bridge to North Haven, then following the from Grumman Aerospace when Grumman left its Calverton facility after they ran out of defense money and which Greenport is keeping temporarily in this indoor building until their waterfront park is ready to accept it – anyway, you make a right at the merry-go-round, go one block on Route 25, at which point you will be in downtown Greenport right in the center of town, then make a left, pass the entrance to ELIH (Eastern Long Island Hospital), then make a right, still on Route 25, and drive the next 7 miles in an easterly direction at high speed so you'll be sure to get to the Orient Point and the Cross-Sound Ferry on time.

The ferry leaves every hour, though reservations are a must. They have a game room and a lunch room on board and you can traffic various zig zags of Ferry Road (Route 114), you get all the way to South Ferry.

"I'm not talking about the obvious-to-everybody shortcuts... but the really special ones."

Take the Ferry to Shelter Island, then continue on following the signs 114 carefully for about ten minutes until you get to North Ferry, which you take to the LIRR (Long Island Railroad) Dock at Greenport. Go one block. Make a right at the indoor merry-go-round – they really have an indoor merry-go-round here which they bought leave your car on the bottom and stroll around on top, enjoy the view of the sea and in an hour and a half you will be gliding into New London, up the mouth of the Connecticut River with the big Pfizer Chemical Factory on your right and then the Electric Boat Works where they make submarines and which is about to go out of business, also on your right, until you pull in and

South O' the Highway (and North, too)

The people planning the annual Artist's Writer's Softball Game this Saturday afternoon in East Hampton are wondering if Roy Scheider is going to be pitching for the artists. He's told people that he's had it written into his movie contract that he has to be able to attend the annual affair, even if it means flying in from Italy, which he apparently did last summer. This year however, actor Ed Burnes, Mort Zuckerman, Walter Isaacson, Weather Man Mr. G, actress Lori Singer, author Roger Kahn, newsman Bill Beutel, and a host of others are expected. But there's been no word from Roy. Perhaps he arrive by helicopter and rappel down a rope during the second inning or something.

Many big stars will be attending the Paul Annacone Tennis Tournament at the East Hampton Indoor Tennis facility to benefit breast cancer research this Sunday and Monday. Expected at the dinner on Monday evening are tennis stars Pete Sampras, John MacEnroe, Lindsay Davenport and Todd Martin, Jim Courier, Ethel, Robert, Jr. and Rory Kennedy, Alec Baldwin and Kim Basinger, Chevy Chase and Jayne Chase, Courtney Ross and her new husband Anders Holst and Kate Capshaw and if he can make it, her husband Stephen Spielberg. A star studded event.

Donny Deutsch has won two prizes this past week. His ad agency Deutsch, Inc. was named Agency of the Year last week. His first prize is Stacey Josloff to whom he has announced his engagement. The two have been frequent companions at Deutsch's oceanfront Amagansett pad.

The party at what has become known as the Galesi Castle oceanfront on Meadow Lane, will bring out the likes of George Plimpton, Cliff Robertson, Ann and Mick Jones and Ann Hearst this weekend. The party hosted by Francesco Galesi is to benefit San Simeon, the giant castle built by William Randolph Hearst in the 1920's and given to the state of California in 1957. The party at Galesi's is a fundraiser to help pay for the maintenance of the Hearst Castle.

A premier of producer/director Ken Burns new PBS TV series Jazz will be held this Saturday at the Sag Harbor Theater. Dinner will follow at Sugar Reef. Money raised will benefit the Hamptons Film Festival and the Absyiniann Baptist Church in Harlem. Among those supporting it are Paul Simon, Ron Perelman, Caroline Miller, Wynton Marsalais, Bob Sillerman, Lorne Michaels, Andrew Cuomo, Ellen Barkin and Russell Simmons.

Tony Hitchcock and Jean Lindgren of the Hampton Classic are celebrating their 25th year running this incredible event. New this year will be the $150,000 Crown Royal Grand Prix and

$25 and Under | Eric Asimov

From the "now you see it, now you don't" department.

For years, the southeast corner of 75th Street and Third Avenue was held down by Juanita's, a Tex-Mex margarita mill with the kind of enclosed sidewalk cafe that was popular in the 1970's. Then Juanita's closed and the space was completely transformed by its new owners into Bistro le Steak. Can you guess the specialty?

The new restaurant has been open six weeks, but it looks as if it's been there forever, or at least since the 70's. Judging by its brass fittings, burnished wood, tile floor and artificially tarnished tin ceiling, the owners dutifully followed the outline for How to Look Like a Parisian Bistro.

It's tempting to pass off Bistro le Steak as a too obvious marketing scheme. The father-and-son owners, Herb and Greg Wetanson, also own Dallas BBQ and Tony's Di Napoli, more noteworthy as concepts than as restaurants. And French is hot now, right?

The surprise is that Bistro le Steak hardly strikes a false note. It does look Parisian. The friendly staff conveys warmth and informality, and the food is both good and an excellent value. By staying away from the most expensive steak, it is possible to keep the tab under $25.

Bistro le Steak

1309 Third Avenue, at 75th Street, Manhattan.
(212) 517-3800.

Best dishes: Country pâté, mussels, shrimp St. Tropez, house salad, Parisian cut sirloin, filet mignon, chocolate cake, lemon tart.

Price range: $20 to $30

Credit cards: All major cards.

Hours: 5 P.M. to midnight daily

Wheelchair access: Entrance is one step up; restrooms are downstairs.

The restaurant wisely sticks to the basics:

country pâté ($5) is a good place to start. The big serving actually includes both a moist pâté and a smooth, flavorful duck terrine, surrounded by a little salad and cornichons. Mussels ($6.50) are delicate, steamed in white wine and garlic, a sauce that calls out for sopping it up with bread. Shrimp St. Tropez ($7.50) is another big appetizer, the shrimp sautéed with garlic, tomatoes and artichoke hearts. I prefer the house salad ($4.50), with its mustardy dressing, over a sampling of marinated vegetables ($5.50).

Yes, the specialty is steak, with five choices. My favorite is the least expensive, the Parisian cut sirloin ($14), firm and full of beefy flavor, served with a mountain of wonderfully crisp, salty fries and a pitcher of Provencal mustard-and-white-wine sauce that seemed superfluous. I didn't try the New York cut sirloin, which was too expensive for this column at $20 and is simply a bigger steak.

The New York rib eye ($16) is quite good, though not so flavorful as the sirloin. Filet mignon, offered plain ($16) and au poivre ($17), is perfectly tender, though also not so beefy. It's a better candidate for Provencal sauce.

The menu also offers poultry, fish and pasta alternatives, and though I might be tempted by a main course order of the mussels with fries ($12), why stray from the specialty?

I wish wines were as good a value as the food. The Brouilly, Château de la Chaize 1994, is excellent, but $21 seems too much for a bottle of Beaujolais.

Desserts are terrific. I especially liked the rich, dense chocolate cake with dried berries hidden in it ($5) and the exuberant lemon tart ($5).

While Bistro le Steak seemed to sprout from nowhere, its owners say they were inspired by Le Steak, a similarly simple restaurant that had a 25-year run on Second Avenue near 57th Street. Maybe this bistro does have history on its side.

DINING OUT

BOOKSTORE-RESTAURANT alliances are so common that many people start to salivate like Pavlov's dogs whenever they crack open a new book. Often these eateries are cappuccino and pastry spots. The Paradise Cafe in the BookHampton building in Sag Harbor is an entirely different genre.

The newcomer is a full-fledged restaurant serving breakfast, lunch and dinner with stylish food prepared by Stephen Putnam, a James Beard award-winning chef. The cafe is situated in the 100-year-old Paradise building on Main Street. For the last 50 years businesses here have used the Paradise name, most recently the Paradise Diner and an ice cream parlor before that.

Patrons enter by way of the book shop, walk through a barroom with an impressive copper-topped bar and enter a long, narrow, spare dining room. Framed sepia photographs of early Long Island nautical scenes dot the walls.

One of the best openers is the grilled Paradise flat bread with either a Parmesan aioli topper or one that resembles bruschetta with plum tomatoes, basil and goat cheese. (A combination plate is available.) Vying with the flat breads for best appetizer honors was a special-salad with roasted yellow and red baby beets surrounding a nest of arugula enhanced by chunks of goat cheese and sauteed Vidalia onions.

A tricolored salad with dried Bing cherries, pine nuts and goat cheese truffles (fried balls of cheese) tossed in a balsamic vinaigrette was too sweet for my taste but had its champions. The field green salad in a sherry-shallot vinaigrette holds a few surprises: a mound of white bean salad and another of croutons.

Other good bets are the clean, fresh-tasting gazpacho, thick with pureed vegetables, and the steamed mussels in a very tasty Dijon-country ham broth. The surprise hit of one meal was the crisply fried calamari. The tender, crunchy ringlets shared the plate with romaine-radicchio slaw, the first cousin of a chopped salad, enlivened by a watermelon-miso emulsion.

One of the platters justifiably turning heads in the dining room is the eight-ounce hamburger ($14) cooked precisely to order, topped with crisp pancetta bacon and Gorgonzola cheese and mated with a mountain of thinly cut, skins-on French fries.

Two other scene stealers are the lightly sauteed sea bass perched atop a calamata olive couscous with a tomato fondue in a saffron broth, and the Moroccan glazed shrimp with roasted eggplant whipped potatoes. Ginger-crusted salmon with salsify, melted leeks and crisp lotus chips and spice-rubbed tuna atop a soba noodle cake with a soy-honey-vinegar sauce also made waves.

There are no duds among the desserts. The lavender creme brulee makes a grand entrance in what looks like a lidded glass candy dish. The chocolate obsession translates to a molten-center cupcake crowned with double chocolate ice cream and bourbon-chocolate sauce. Just as appealing was a warm apple tart topped with a ball of cinnamon ice cream rolled in walnuts with a drizzle of applejack caramel. Even the cooke plate is worthy: an assortment of homemade treats including chewy brownies and fun-to-eat Oreo-style sandwich cookies.

SUMMER PLEASURES FROM THE LOIRE VALLEY

Featuring Jean Sauvion, The Wine Wizard of The Loire

LOIRE WHITE WINE	BOTTLE	CASE
CLER BLANC	5.19	62.28
Sauvion "This crisp, sprightly white is a crowd-pleaser...it's dry but very fruity, quite light, with a slight tingle on the palate. Sauvion manages to capture this clean, lifting freshness year after year - I guess that's why he's known as 'the wine wizard of the Loire.'" - Barbara Ensrud (484)

CHARDONNAY "JARDIN DE LA FRANCE" 1999	BOTTLE	CASE
5.49	65.88
Jean Sauvion Chardonnay, one of the world's most popular varietals, has a different twist in the Loire. Crisp, fresh, floral and light, this Loire styled Chardonnay is a delightful surprise to the more traditional fruity styled wines produced elsewhere. (4421)

GROS PLANT "CHATEAU DU CLERAY" 1999	BOTTLE	CASE
5.95	71.40
Sauvion Crisp and bone dry, this refreshing and aromatic white displays pleasing lemon flavors. (4521)

VOUVRAY "VALLEE DE LOIRE" 1999	BOTTLE	CASE
5.95	71.40
Sauvion Here is an easy to drink, fresh, soft and smoothly-textured wine made from the Chenin Blanc. Honeyed fruit and flora aromas make this very refreshing. (4467)

MUSCADET "LA NOBLERIE" 1999	BOTTLE	CASE
6.49	77.88
Sauvion A fresh, crisp and outstanding Muscadet, this wine has been bottled "sur lie" or on its lees to impart added flavor and complexity. A slight petillance on the palate gives this Muscadet an appealing liveliness. (4462)

ANJOU BLANC 1999	BOTTLE	CASE
6.95	83.40
Sauvion Produced from the Chenin Blanc grown on limestone rich soil, this delightful white is crisp and dry with very pleasing soft fruit. It is the perfect introduction to Loire Valley wines. (4469)

TOURAINE "LES GENETS" 1999	BOTTLE	CASE
6.95	83.40
Jean Sauvion created this wine from the Sauvignon Blanc grape. It is similar in taste to Pouilly-Fume and Sancerre. (4468)

QUINCY "LES GLANEUSES" 1999	BOTTLE	CASE
9.95	119.40
Sauvion Made from the distinguished Sauvignon Blanc and similar in style to Sancerre. It is very dry with refreshing acidity. (4471)

POUILLY-FUME "LES OMBELLES" 1999	BOTTLE	CASE
11.95	143.40
Sauvion Opulent and rich with citrus fruit and smoky flavors, this dry white is one of Sauvion's finest. (4461)

SANCERRE "LES BRULIS" 1999	BOTTLE	CASE
13.49	161.88
An aromatic and elegant wine, this full-bodied Sancerre displays an uncommon finesse. Exotic bouquet of jasmine mingles with herbaceous fruit and lively flavors. (4423)

LOIRE RED & ROSE WINE	BOTTLE	CASE
SAUMUR CHAMPIGNY "GRAVIERES DU ROY" 1999	8.95	107.40

Sauvion An intensely fruity and herbaceous red that is made from Cabernet Franc. (4424)

CHINON "LES ROCHES CACHIEES" 1999	BOTTLE	CASE
9.49	113.88

Sauvion This fresh, fruity and delicious red comes from the picturesque medieval fortress town that rises above the river Vienne. (4470)

Champagne Demoiselle Reserve Special of Lucas Carton

FROM ALAIN SENDERENS

Alain Senderens, the renowned chef of Paris' famed restaurant Lucas Carton, explains: "In 1993, when I met my good friend Paul-Francois Vranken, I asked him to create a special cuvée of Champagne that I would be proud to serve to the guests of Lucas Carton. After much research M. Vranken created Champagne Demoiselle Reserve Special Lucas Carton.

THE TASTE

It is a very dry Champagne that imparts a buttery flavor on the palate and it was created to be consumed with the cuisine of my beloved restaurant." (1140)

CHATEAU de LA CHAIZE 1998

Chateau de La Chaize, built in 1676, is located in the heart of Beaujolais and is the star among the wine estates of Brouilly. La Marquise Nicole de Roussy de Sales inherited the Chateau in 1967. Through hard work the Roussy de Sales family transformed this "Sleeping beauty" into the most successful wine estate in Brouilly. This 1998 Brouilly displays a beautiful balance of ripe fruit and supple tannins. (990)

After leaving the big ferry, follow the signs (or ask one of the big burly men who wave people on and off the ferry and man the anchors and lines) how to get to the on-ramp of Route 95 heading south to Bridgeport, which is about an hour away.

It's an uneventful drive of fifty miles to Bridgeport, though at certain times of year, you'll be able to enjoy the foliage on both sides of the road, much of which is indigenous cedars and other evergreens, but then you will finally get to Exit 27, where Route 8 comes in from the north, and you will take the off-ramp and follow the signs down to the docks of Bridgeport and the Bridgeport-Port Jefferson Ferry. By the way, do not take the wrong exit and head NORTH on Route 8. That could take you all the way up into Maine and Newfoundland. A terrible mistake!

At the ferry, drive on board. Enjoy the ride, which is about one hour and fifteen minutes with once again your car on the bottom and the snack bar and game room up on top.

At Port Jefferson, the easiest way to go is to follow Route 25A east, because 25A is right there at the Ferry. Go through Rocky Point, Shoreham where they have the defunct nuclear power plant, Wading River, then when you get to a T where Route 25A ends, make a left on Route 25 and drive through the farmland – it's real pretty here – then follow Route 25 seven miles to downtown Riverhead.

It gets a little tricky here. Go all the way into downtown, until you are at a place where there are two traffic lights within one block of each other, and a big bank on the right. Go to the second traffic light, make a right, pass the old Tirecraft store on your right and now you will be going around a traffic circle.

Go three quarters of the way around. If you turn onto Route 104 heading toward Westhampton you didn't go far enough. If you are heading back the way you came, you went too far. In between is Route 24, which goes southeast, past a McDonald's on your left, through Flanders – is it really named after that province in France, or is it named after that character on the Simpsons? – and then past the big White Duck twenty feet tall with the pink eyes on your left – no you are not drunk, this is or was a farmstand – and then down under the overpass and you'll be facing the Hampton Bays Diner with the Sterns Department Store Plaza on your right.

Turn left here onto Route 27A. You'll go all the way through Hampton Bays which is an old fishing town, and then on the other side, after you pass the CPI (Canoe Place Inn) on your left, you will go over a bridge that crosses the Shinnecock Canal and then immediately you will make the first left, just past the Altenkirk Fishing Station, and head north on what is known as North Road. Eventually, this road curves around, goes back under the overpass of the Sunrise Highway, then continues on for two miles until it links up with County Road 39 in Shinnecock right where the Lobster Inn is on your left. Turn right at the Light. You will be heading west in a virtually traffic-free area almost ten miles from where you started the shortcut, and you will have successfully (and easily!) circumvented that big tie up that holds everybody up from Wainscott to Shinnecock.

Congratulations. And tell everybody you read it in Dan's Papers. •

Stuck In The Hamptons A Day Later Than It's Supposed To Be

By Dan Rattiner

It all started when I woke up on Sunday morning. I took a shower, brushed my teeth and shaved. Then I got into my car and drove down to the East Hampton Bagel store and got a dozen bagels, cream cheese, sliced swiss, lox, orange juice and milk. Also the Sunday Times.

But there was no Sunday Times, which I thought was very odd. I got the Saturday New York Times which is what they had there on the metal stand, paid for my purchases and came home. We were expecting company by 11. We'd sit outside at the picnic table and talk about life in the Hamptons. The kids would run around. Maybe I'd get the Sunday Times later in the morning.

When I got home, however, I was surprised to see that nobody was up. It was nearly nine o'clock. Sunday was chore day and usually Cathie had gotten the teenagers up and going by that hour. Nine turned to nine thirty. Finally, I went into Gabriel's room, he's sixteen, and shook him.

"Time to get up," I said.

"What time is it?" he mumbled.

"Nine thirty."

"Go away," he said. "I get one more hour."

"No you don't. It's Sunday."

"It's Saturday, dad."

* * *

I had the same problem on Monday morning. I got up at seven before anybody else, dressed manager at home. My call had woken her up. I didn't care. Where was everybody?

"Dan, it's Sunday," she mumbled.

* * *

The problem persisted all week. Tuesday is the day we get the paper out. Usually we work well into the night. It's a seventeen hour day for many of us. But I was ready. I had gotten to bed at nine p.m. the night before and had slept nearly ten hours. But we wouldn't be staying late that night after all. In fact, by noon I was supposed to have edited all the stories that were going into the paper and have them ready for the production department, and I hadn't. Hadn't that been done yesterday? I asked.

No, the Production Manager said, putting her hands on her hips. Nobody came in yesterday. It was Sunday.

* * *

Probably the hardest day for me that week was the following morning, which was Wednesday. Ordinarily, having stayed up so late the night before, I stay in bed until about noon. Then I stagger around. Then I call the office. Often I am for work, and went to the office in Bridgehampton. It was locked. I waited for about an hour at which time it was nine o'clock. Where was everybody? Thirty people work at Dan's Papers. Is it possible that all thirty of them could be late for work on the same day? Impossible.

About twenty after nine, upset, I called our office

so beat I don't even come in on Wednesdays. I work from home.

Around one p.m., however, I called the office to receive a firm rebuke.

"When are you coming in?" the art director said. "What?"

"We have to go over the cover for next week. The disk has to go into the printer tonight with the paper. Aren't you coming in? People are waiting for you."

It took everything I had to pour myself into the car and drive to work for the long afternoon and evening of getting the weekly paper to the printer that night. I worked nine hours. But when I dragged myself home, I told Cathie it felt like ninety.

"What was so special about this Tuesday night?" she asked.

* * *

Thursday morning, I woke up so confused I decided I ought to see a psychiatrist. I found one in the phone book and called him up. I wanted to see him that day.

"Wednesday looks fine," the secretary said.

But that was six days away. It seemed too far off to me.

"I could give you Thursday," she finally said.

That was okay with me. We made the appointment for 2 p.m., just five hours away. I ate breakfast, slept, had a tuna fish sandwich, drove over to the psychiatrist's office, and sat in the waiting room. Troubled looking people, dabbing their eyes with handkerchiefs, kept coming out and going into the doctor's office. Soon it was three o'clock. Then four. I left. Some psychiatrist.

* * *

The next morning, Friday morning, I called to complain.

"Come right in," the secretary said. "If you can get here in fifteen minutes, the doctor will see you right away."

I raced over, parked the car, ran in and sat down on the wicker, breathless.

A man came out, red eyed, his chin aquiver. He put on his jacket, blew his nose into a blue handkerchief and left the waiting room. Now the nurse came out and looked at me.

"The doctor will see you now," she said, motioning for me to come in.

I followed her down a narrow corridor to the doctor's office. He was sitting in a leather chair, a friendly smile on his face, leather patches on his suit jacket elbows and a notepad in his lap. He motioned for me to sit down in a leather chair opposite him and after I did he leaned forward.

"What seems to be the problem?" he asked.

I told him. I told him about this entire horrible week and how everything had gone wrong. I didn't understand it. I didn't know what to do about it. I took out a handkerchief and blew my nose.

"Is that a new wristwatch?" he asked, pointing to my wrist.

"Yes it is," I said. "I just got it last week. For my birthday."

He asked to see it and so I took it off my wrist and handed it to him. He looked at it.

"Nice watch," he said. "And I think I have found your problem."

He held it out to me. "It's set a day late," he said. "See, today is Thursday the 15th. Your watch says Friday the 16th. Here. I'll fix it for you."

And he took the watch in two hands, twisted some dials, and then handed it back to me.

"There," he said.

"Thanks so much, doc."

"No problem. That's two hundred and fifty dollars for the hour. No charge for the watch repair. Pay on your way out."

And I did.

On my way out to the car I thought, shouldn't I be seeing him tomorrow? Or yesterday? •

Platitudes

Me, Hillary, Bill, George W, Dick, Al, Rick And The Rest Of The Gang

By Dan Rattiner

Is it just me? Or are all the candidates just spouting boring meaningless drivel. They had the Republican convention. Here are some of the banner headlines from the Republican candidates.

"Let's Begin Again," shouted The New York Post, quoting Chaney.

"Republican Team Offers 'a Stiff Dose of Truth,'" said The New York Times.

"Bush Vows New Vision" said USA Today.

Then there were these banner headlines, as provided by George W. Bush.

"They Have Not Led. We will." (USA Today.)

"The Main Thing to do is Keep Our Eye on the Finish Line," (New York Post.)

"We Must Take these Good Times and Provide Leadership." (The New York Times.)

Or this from Al Gore: "When it comes to political pageantry, I've got to hand it to the other side." (The New York Times.)

It wasn't so long ago, in the primary, and I am referring to such people as Bill Bradley and John McCain, that we had real, specific, stick your neck out, proposals. Bradley wanted to accept campaign money only in small amounts. He had a proposal for health care. The money would come from over here. We'd move it to over there. You didn't necessarily agree with it, but it was imaginative and something to judge the man by.

You'll notice I have so far specifically left out Hillary Clinton and that is because I thought if there were anybody who would set specific proposals on the table it would be her. But I heard Hillary speak at a luncheon in East Hampton and all I learned was that she was in favor of motherhood, health care, women's and children's rights, education and help for the poor. There was a question and answer period afterwards, and whatever anybody asked that was clearly a wrong needing to be righted, she agreed with. It was as vague and as filled with platitudes as any speech I had heard.

Why are all the people running for office pulling their heads into their shells and spouting these inane generalizations? Yes, we are in favor of if I would be part of a roundtable conversation with her at the Islandia Hilton. It would be for reporters. It would be at 12:30.

This was a busy day for me here at the newspaper and I already had numerous appointments. Also, it was very short notice and it was an hour away. There would go the whole afternoon. I said I'd have to pass.

"Would you like to be part of this sort of thing in the future?" the woman asked.

"Yes," I said. "But I'd need more notice."

"I can give you that," she said. "Also, I'll fax you an eight page biography about her for background."

"Okay."

I stewed about this for awhile. I guess I'm angry with Hillary. The others as well. If I went, I might ask tough questions to draw specific proposals from her. She might circle around. It could be an embarrassment. Not only for her, but for me. I wouldn't be going along with the usual crap.

The bio came over. And I was struck by one particular phrase, in quotes, she seems to have said about her mother.

"(My mother) fed us with devotion, imagination and great spirit. I learned from both my mother and father the importance of families."

And, further down the bio, this gem.

"When people ask me about health care reform, I tell them that I am disappointed we were not able to make more progress."

Just a hundred feet above the ocean, right above the water line, a very official looking helicopter broke out of a patch of fog and then disappeared.

Cancer Research. Yes, there should be more help for the elderly. Duh. Are they afraid they might say something that would lose them percentage points with their rivals? (Answer: Yes.) Well none of them are going to get my vote until I hear what they've got in store if elected.

All this came to the surface for me Friday, August 4 when at 10:30 in the morning I got a call from Hillary Campaign Headquarters asking

I thought, well, maybe, if I went and kept my mouth shut at a roundtable and was a good boy, having been brought into the royal presence, I might get a quote or two to put together to make a profile about her in Dan's Papers, a "Who's Here." And then it dawned on me. Hillary IS here. She's been just about everywhere in the Hamptons in these last few weeks, and without going anywhere I could write a "Who's Here" using the quotes in her bio. And besides that, I did meet her. I shook her hand at that luncheon I went to.

Under these circumstances, and feeling malevolent, I decided that at the end of my work day at 5, I would drive down to Sagg Main Beach and sit in the passenger seat of my SUV — it was a rainy day and you couldn't sit outside — and on my little laptop write this interview. And I would write it from the perspective of an extremely inept reporter who adored her. Platitudes would meet platitudes.

Just before I left for the beach, the phone rang again. It was once again from Hillary's headquarters. She would be at the Montauk Lighthouse at 5:30. This would be in fifteen minutes and it would be twenty miles away.

I groaned. I said thank you very much, pointed out it still wasn't much in the way of notice, and then I went to Sagg Beach to write.

I'd been writing five minutes. The waves were crashing, the fog was rolling in, and my main concern was whether or not to keep the window partially open. If I kept it closed, it was a bit stuffy. If I opened it, it rained on my keyboard. I compromised. It stayed open a crack.

"Hillary Clinton is a handsome woman in her early fifties who has a bright smile, a steady, strong voice and a considerable intelligence," I wrote happily. "There is a no-nonsense way about her. And she feels very strongly about government and politics and what they can do. 'I have very strong feelings about health care, the disadvantaged, family and women's and children's rights,' she said recently."

And then I heard a sound coming from the west. Budda, budda, budda, budda. It got louder and louder. And there it was. Just a hundred feet above the ocean, right above the water line, a very official looking helicopter broke out of a patch of fog and then disappeared into another patch of fog. It was moving very quickly. Then, it was gone.

My first thought was that this was extremely dangerous. Moving in and out of the fog could be very disorienting. It was also, I thought, illegal. You can't fly at this low altitude. There are laws against it.

My second thought was that Hillary was running late. I looked at the clock on my dashboard. 5:50. My third thought was that my interview was now legitimized. I'd been at Sagg Beach the same time Hillary had.

* * *

The Hillary interview ran last week. This article is running, of course, right now. If you have gotten this far, you are reading it.

I truly expect, since newspaper editors play significant roles in political campaigns, and since Dan's Papers has a very large circulation, I will be inundated with specific proposals on specific issues from Hillary's staff. Also, perhaps from the staffs of numerous other candidates.

I would advise them to tell this not just to me, but to the world. Where do they stand? Really? Why are we just getting statements about Moving Forward, and A Time for Leadership? Let's get on with it. Tell the dailies. Tell Peter Jennings.

I really think that our best hope for some imaginative thinking will eventually come from Hillary Clinton and Al Gore. They are behind at the polls. If they remain behind, they will have to start taking chances. And that will mean more than just the current blather.

There is an old story about the difference between a Republican and a Democrat. A Republican will be driving along a highway and see a woman with a flat tire by the side of the road, and he will look at his watch, note that he is late for an appointment and drive on.

A Democrat will be driving along a highway and see a woman with a flat tire by the side of the road, pull over, roll up his sleeves, and then before it is over, will have lost three lug nuts and broken the axle.

Politics.

Since the above was written, Gore announced his running mate, Joseph Lieberman, and has begun making very specific proposals about the nation's problems. He's pulled even in the polls.

Seal Rehab

Call 631-369-9840 Right Away If You See A Sea Mammal Stranded On The Beach

By Ben Amato

The young harbor seal was too exhausted to move, so he lay on the rock and waited for the end. The fishing net tangled around his neck had cut deeply into his flesh and the resulting infection drained him of every ounce of energy. He was sick, too exhausted to move and ready to die.

From January through April, the Riverhead Foundation for Marine Research conducts Harbor Seal Walks at Montauk Point and on the April 8th observation, one of its naturalists spotted the dying young pup. The call was made to the Stranding Hotline, 631-369-9829, and Chris Buckman, educational coordinator of the Atlantis Aquarium and Riverhead Foundation biologist Rob DiGiovanni grabbed a hoop net and a transport cage. They went out to save a life.

Two weeks ago, this young harbor seal named Ensnare, now much fatter, healed and happier, was released back into the wild. This was only one of the hundreds of successful rescues the Riverhead Foundation has been involved in during the past several years. Other East Coast stranding programs annually net twenty or thirty animals. This year, Program Director Kimberly Durham recorded sixty-five call already. Last year they rescued sixty-two. The years before they had numbers in the hundreds.

"I enjoy going out on the calls. It's a neat job but you have to learn to live with the variables," said Rob DiGiovanni. "Two years ago, Christmas Eve, I left to go home and by 9:30 p.m. an animal in distress had to be picked up. It's your whole life."

"We prefer more calls," said Kimberly, "not less. We need to get the public involved." The Foundation is trying to learn about the natural patterns of behavior of the sea life around the island. A special phone number was established said Kimberly, "they encourage us to have ideas. We come to them with one and you see the lights going off in their heads."

"We want the big picture. It's ambitious and costly but it gets us on a bigger scale. We're developing long term goals," said biologist and keeper of the financial books Rob DiGiovanni.

"In '96, we opened our door and had to raise $400,000 the first year," Kim said with a pride associated with success. They get operating cash through donations and New York State Wildlife funds. (That's the little box so few of us check off on our New York State income tax forms.) "The animals are the variables. It costs $4,000 dollars to rehabilitate a seal and we had 130 animals our first year." Kim added, "No matter how many times we bill them, they just don't pay. They have lousy insurance."

February, March and April are the busiest months. "All the tanks are full of animals. Late at night, they all come up on their ledges," said Kim, recalling experiences from early spring. "I make the rounds and it's so quiet. This one seal was on its back, snoring." The look on her face revealed that these animals do pay their debts, but with emotional dividends.

Even the Foundation's biologist/accountant has his soft spot. Rob revealed that, "It's hard. You get attached to two or three of them but then for people to report sightings of healthy marine mammals and sea turtles. No organization has done that before. If you spot a seal, dolphin, whale or sea turtle, call 631-369-9840, ext. 15. Every marine mammal sighting is important.

Jim Bissett and Joe Petrocelli, co-owners of the Atlantis Aquarium, are committed to help the Foundation succeed and grow. A huge hospital, laboratory, feeding facility and outdoor rehabilitation tanks have been build in the southeast corner of the aquarium. "They give us no ceiling," you let them go." His smile showed he knew where they really belonged.

But some can't go back to the demanding freedom of the oceans. On April 30th, 1997, a female gray seal washed ashore about one mile west of Old Beach Lane, in East Hampton. She was blind. Gray Beauty has found a home in a tank at Atlantis Aquarium and under the care of Foundation biologists and volunteers, she has grown and prospered, adapting to her disability.

"She has thick whiskers and she moves her head, scanning along the bottom. She comes into contact with a fish and eats it up. She also uses her front flippers to scan, to compensate." Kimberly add, "Now we think this is a natural behavior but we have not seen it as pronounced with animals with vision."

Gray Beauty has gained one hundred pounds, to bring her up to about two hundred. She's active, a strong swimmer and has a great coat of

fur. But she can't go back to her home so the Foundation and Atlantis is building her a new one. "The Foundation wants to become a safe haven for stranded animals that are not releasable," said Kimberly.

A major fund raising campaign has just been started, with Atlantis donating the land and school children and other benefactors helping with the $160,000 construction bill. "She gets more mail than I do," laments Kimberly, referring to the way Gray Beauty has entered the hearts of all who have seen her face.

Not all rescues have happy results but a success rate of over 70% soothes the heart when they

Recent Visitors To Cuba Talk At Southampton College About The Country's Contradictions

By Lily R. Oliver

On Saturday, August 12, the World Affairs Council of Long Island held a meeting at Chancellor's Hall at Southampton College. John McAuliff, the executive director of an organization called Fund for Reconciliation and Development, hosted the event, which included speeches by Dan Rattiner and Harvey and Barbara Hellering.

"One of the things that makes this meeting special," McAuliff said, "is that there's no wine, and also there's no charge."

This meeting was unique for more reasons than Mr. McAuliff mentioned. The topic of discussion was Cuba, a country which is mysterious to anyone that has never been there, a kind of forbidden land with many fundamental ideological differences from the United States. Mr. Rattiner and Mr. and Mrs. Hellering, all of whom had visited Cuba in February, gave speeches about their experiences in one of the only remaining communist countries in the world.

"The whole of Havana looks like an abandoned city," Mr. Rattiner began. "Parts are crumbling and parts are restored at the same time . . . On the walls [of my hotel] there were pictures of gangsters and people from the '40s and '50s, its heyday . . . The city of Havana is probably one of the world's great architectural gems."

Mr. Rattiner got the impression that most tourists have when they first arrive in Havana. There is a feeling of awe at the beauty of the place and also some disbelief at how broken down it all is. "You see the drapes, and all of them are from the 1950s," he continued. "[Now] They're bringing in experts from Europe. There is also a brilliant Cuban city planning expert. Right now they have ten to fifteen percent of the facades in the Old City restored. Money . . . is coming from all other countries except the United States."

Revenues from tourists have increased in the past few years as interest in Cuba is growing in the United States and around the world. The influx of tourists is allowing Cubans who have access to dollars, the only currency worth anything in Cuba (there are twenty Cuban pesos to the dollar), to lead more comfortable lives, and it also is giving Doctors, teachers, and other professionals that have served for many years earn salaries of over twenty dollars. Although goods are much cheaper there than in the United States, the average income is still insufficient for living decently. Because of this, the black market thrives. Everything from cigars to pastries can be obtained in narrow alleyways and back rooms.

Despite hard times, visitors do not leave the island feeling depressed. There is not the same sense of utter despair in Cuba as there is in other third world countries.

"They have very little. There's not much stuff there because of the American embargo," Mr. Rattiner commented. "[But] They are an upbeat, happy people."

"All Cubans love to have their picture taken and their cars were lovingly tended . . . There is music everywhere," Mrs. Hellering agreed.

She and her husband attended several concerts in La Plaza de Armas by a certain orchestra. "Cuba has a long history of classical music training which is probably why all the street musicians sound so good. [At one of the concerts] There was a street cleaner across the square, and when she heard them play danson, she grabbed her broom and began to dance. It was really a moving thing to see."

Cubans devote a great amount of their time to music, which is a very important part of their culture. Every Cuban knows the mambo, the salsa, the meringue and all of the other traditional dances. Many Cubans can play more than one instrument or sing. Music is one of the only activities that can be enjoyed without inhibitions.

It is not just the disgruntled cab driver that has complaints. Even employees of the state such as teachers, doctors and Communist Party members... speak out.

the government more funds with which to improve the city. Hopefully, in a few years most of Havana will have been restored.

The desperation seen in Cuba is the result of the Special Period (periodo especial). The Special Period began about ten years ago when the Soviet Union collapsed and withdrew all financial support from Castro's government. Now, every Cuban has a ration card allotting them about one pound of rice and beans a month, enough meat for twelve meals, cigarettes, and assorted amounts of sugar, salt, fruits and vegetables. After age seven and until retirement, there is no milk. Anything not on the ration card must be bought with their salaries. According to the U.S. Interests Section in Havana, Cubans that work for the government make an average of eleven dollars a month.

Dressing in the right clothes for dancing is also critical. "Spandex and the female form are very important. Men appreciate the female form and women appreciate that the men appreciate them."

I spent the month of July travelling throughout Cuba with a group of sixteen students as part of a Putney Student Travel program. The trip focused intensely on culture study.

While there, I found that most Cubans are much more content talking about the Buena Vista Social Club than about Castro. Politics is not a main topic of discussion for many reasons. One is that Cubans do not have a choice in what their government does, and there are consequences for speaking out. The government will often harass dissidents physically or economically. As a result, "Politics is not a big deal... They don't love Castro, they don't hate him, and they make jokes about it," Mr. Hellering said.

Even though the average Cuban may not take a great interest in the government, the government invests lots of time and money into making it seem like they do. Governmental propaganda is everywhere. Billboards along the Malecon, the main waterfront walkway of Havana, read "Socialism or Death," (socialismo o muerte) "The Fatherland or Death," (la patria o muerte) and "We want to be like Che and Fidel" (queremos que seamos como Che y Fidel). If one pries, it is easy to see that these phrases fall on unsympathetic minds. One cab driver, upon learning that I was from the United States, pulled down a quiet side street in Havana and shared his opinions with me. He picked up a copy of El Granma, a state-run newspaper, that was sitting on the passenger seat of his '50s Ford and pointed to a picture of Castro on the front page. "Muy mal, muy loco," he told me. I asked him to elaborate. "La economia no esta bien. No me gusta el socialismo."

It is not just the disgruntled cab driver that has complaints. Even employees of the state such as teachers, doctors, and Communist Party members sometimes speak out. In Havana I struck up a conversation with a woman whose husband is a ranking official in the CDR (Communists for the Defense of the Revolution). She remarked that all Cubans are unhappy with the current situation, especially the young people.

"My generation in the '80s had all these hopes and dreams for the future, and now with the Special Period . . ."

The generation equivalent to the baby boomers have a strong sense of family and community and at least used to believe that socialism had a chance of functioning successfully. Now, their children are turning to other ideologies, such as racism and materialism, sentiments which barely existed in Cuba ten years ago.

In Cuba, one is constantly reminded there are two sides to every statement, statistic and aspect of life.

"Contradictions hit you everywhere," Mrs. Hellering said.

In Cuba, no one is homeless but almost without exception grandparents, parents and children all live together in one house or apartment. It is mandatory to go the doctor twice a year for check-ups and all medical bills are paid by the government, but the doctors and hospitals are in dire need of supplies.

Education is also free and taken very seriously, and there is an abundance of well-trained teachers. All Cuban children take Spanish, English, math, science, and Cuban history. Each school has a television, a project created and funded by Castro, but they only have two channels and one or two videos to show. There are no textbooks, no chalkboards, almost no paper and pens. There is no murder or rape but there is police brutality.

One thing I learned while I was in Cuba, and perhaps the most important thing, is that socialism has its advantages. In the United States, we tend to think that democracy is the best form of government and capitalism is its best partner, but I realized that our systems are not without their own flaws. We have freedom of speech, voting privileges, and civil liberties, but we also have a great imbalance of wealth, materialism, racism and crime, all things that do not exist in Cuba. When Fidel Castro dies, many think Americans will try to impose their beliefs on the Cubans, but it may not all be wanted.

"They consider Castro family. They don't call him Castro, but Fidel. [However] My experience is that the Cubans want more freedom but are proud of and want to keep the advances that they've got. My hope is the benefits of socialism stay, because that is what is important to the people," Mr. Rattiner said.

And maybe after Castro passes, for the first time freedom will be important too.

The Feds Plan To Bring Sheep With Possible Mad Cow Disease To Plum Island

By Jerry Cimisi

The U.S. Department of Agriculture plans to bring, from Vermont to Plum Island, both live and dead sheep which might be infected with the always fatal mad cow disease. The sheep will be studied and then incinerated at the Animal Disease Research Center on the island.

There are two pressing issues here. Ever since last autumn, when it was first announced that the government wanted to upgrade the research facility at Plum Island from Biosafety Level 3 to Level 4, a level at which animal diseases that are also transmissible to humans would be studied, there has been a great deal of local opposition to the upgrade. It would appear that to bring mad cow disease, a disease that is also fatal to humans, the government is in fact working at a Level 4 degree without officially declaring the island at Level 4.

There is no cure for mad cow disease and no vaccine for it, but Sandy Hays, a spokeswoman for the Animal Research Service of the USDA, said that "the family of diseases mad cow belongs to, Transmissible Spongiform Encephalopathies, do not require Biosafety Level 4."

She added, "At any rate, it has not been proven that these sheep have BSE."

Although, of course, this is the grounds on which the sheep are being destroyed. If the sheep prove to have BSE, can they legally be at Plum Island, which is still at Biosafety Level 3?

Ms. Hays responded that because a person could only get mad cow by eating an infected animal, not by blood to blood contact, it is not considered to be the health threat that diseases such as ebola in humans or the nipah virus that infected pigs in Malaysia in 1996. Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy, BSE, has been studied at the National Animal Disease Center in Ames Iowa. BSE has never been studied at Plum Island,

Then there is the question of whether these sheep actually have mad cow disease in the first place. The sheep that will be trucked across Long Island to the very tip of the North Fork, then ferried out to Plum Island, come from three different flocks of dairy sheep in Vermont. The sheep had been imported from Belgium in 1996. The USDA has said that each of the flocks has sheep that may be infected with mad cow. One

Most of the BSE cases, a full 95%, have been in the UK. The agent that causes BSE has not been fully identified. It seems to be neither a virus nor bacteria and is referred to as a prion, or an infective type of protein. BSE affects the neurological system. Holes are eaten in the brain. The infected animals are destroyed. One infected animal in a herd means the entire herd will have to be destroyed. There is no treatment. Thus far, BSE is always fatal.

BSE mirrors a rare, degenerative and also fatal human disease, Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease (CJD), which normally occurs in one in a million people.

In 1996, the United Kingdom's Spongiform Encephalopathy Advisory Committee identified ten cases of a variant type of CJD, labelled vCJD. Many scientists think there is a strong link between this variant of CJD and mad cow disease. One of the big differences between classical CJD and the variant was that CJD victims are usually over sixty, whereas the variant victims were in their teens and twenties. It is feared that this CJD variant might have been contracted by the eating of contaminated beef.

In the '80s and before, mad cow disease spread among the cattle population of Britain by feeding practices that were once common but have since been outlawed in Europe and America: animals were fed the rendered body parts of other animals; specifically one species would be eating the body parts of members of its own species. In short, cannibalism. The ban on the practice was not put into effect in the U.S. until 1997. Because of the economic fear of BSE ravaging the cattle industry, flock of twenty-one sheep has been destroyed. The owners of the other two flocks have taken the government to court, citing expert testimony that casts doubt on the government's tests. In the case of the latter two flocks, the government was successful in court, but the owners have appealed the decision, and that is where the matter stands now.

Mad cow disease is the colloquial name for Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy or BSE (it is one of the TSEs – transmissible spongiform encephalopathies), a disease that has stricken cows since it was first diagnosed in 1986 in Britain.

in the 1980s members of the European Union as well as the United States, put a ban on all beef imports from the United Kingdom. The EU has since lifted the ban, though some countries, such as France, maintain the ban. As both mad cow and CJD have a long latency period, it is feared that more human cases will develop in the near future even though feeding practices have been changed. The ban is still in place in America.

Apparently the only way in which any animal or person can contract BSE is by eating meat from an infected animal. Officials counter the worry about transporting animals who possibly have BSE by saying there is no way the disease will be spread by animals passing through Long Island on a truck.

On August 1, US District Judge J. Gavan Murtha ruled that the government had reason enough to destroy the three flocks of Vermont sheep to avoid the possible and very serious health menace of BSE.

The owner of one flock had already acceded to the demands of the U.S. Department of Agriculture and did not fight having his flock destroyed, but the owners of the two other flocks, Linda and Larry Faillace of Warren, Vermont and Houghton Freeman of Stowe, are fighting the order on the grounds that the government has not sufficiently proven its case.

Attorney Thomas Higgins, representing Freeman, said that the testing the government undertook on the sheep was "deficient in manner and method. It failed to conform to accepted scientific practice."

The question is whether the government's tests reveal the presence of BSE or a related disease called scrapie, which is dangerous to sheep but not humans. Scrapie also came to this country from the UK, in 1947. Scrapie, along with BSE, is one of the diseases called TSE, transmissible spongiform encephalopathies. The little understood infective agent of TSE, the prion, has, unlike bacteria and viruses, no DNA or RNA. The agent is also extremely resistant to heat and radiation.

On July 14, Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman declared an "extraordinary emergency" in the matter of the sheep.

Shu Chen, who is a prion researcher at Case Western University in Cleveland, said the government's tests were "preliminary and should be validated by repeated experiments."

Attorney Higgins said that the sheep have nothing more than common scrapie. The owners of the flock maintain that there has been no evidence that their sheep or any other sheep have BSE and that their sheep, which are dairy producing sheep from Belgium, have never been fed any questionable feed.

The Department of Agriculture said that ultimately its test showed the sheep were infected with a TSE "of foreign origin" and thus "extraordinary" measures had to be taken.

USDA filed a motion in U.S. District Court on Tuesday, August 8, basically asking the judge to move for judgement on the pleadings to enforce the Secretary's order.

Professor Emmanuel Vanopdenbosch, the chairman of the European Commissions study group on mad cow disease, was quoted in the Belgian newspaper De Morgen as saying, "The BSE question with sheep is a timebomb that continues to tick." He said that BSE would spread more quickly through sheep because of their smaller size relative to cattle and that more sheep would have to be destroyed if BSE did hit the sheep population than had been destroyed with the recent British scare with mad cow. Vanopdenbosch warned that because sheep have been imported all over the world for years, this problem could turn up anywhere.

The European Commission on mad cow also has made a request of the USDA to send them tissue samples from the Vermont sheep. As of this writing it is not known if the U.S. will send these samples to Europe.

* * *

Linda Detwiler, of the USDA's Animal Plant Health Inspection Service, said that since the late '40s there has been a ban on the importation of sheep from Europe. "The only places where we could import sheep and goats was from Australia, New Zealand and Canada." In 1992, at the urging of the sheep industry, which wanted to introduce new genetics into American breeds, the Food and Drug Administration allowed European sheep to be brought into America, though the sheep would be subjected to a strict scrapie monitoring program. The Vermont sheep in question were imported from Belgium in 1996; it was because these flocks were so closely monitored that the TSE infection had been discovered.

Ms. Detwiler said that at the time when the Bobbi Brown, 43-years old and only five-foot tall, stands high in stature as a quintessential businesswoman, new author and beauty editor for NBC's Today Show. Bobbi, who purchased a home in East Hampton last October, is among the most sought-after makeup artists today and in great demand by the hottest fashion designers. Although she works with top photographers, models and movie stars, Bobbi remains as down-to-earth and as fresh as her own makeup line.

Frequently interviewed, the successful entrepreneur has become a celebrity herself, and claims she is successful because she keeps things simple. The key word to describe her thinking on beauty is "natural."

"What is your philosophy on beauty?" I inquired. "I think every woman has her own beauty and the most important beauty aspect is confidence. If a woman feels good about who she is and what she looks like, and is comfortable with that, she comes across as much more beautiful to the world."

After graduating from Emerson College in Boston, where Bobbi earned a degree in Theatrical Makeup, she would practice applying makeup on her brothers. Soon, she beat the pavement on the streets of Manhattan, with her portfolio in hand, landing her first Vogue cover shoot. In 1990, Bobbi took her favorite shades that she hand-mixed to a chemist and turned out a few lipsticks. In 1991, Bobbie Brown Professional Cosmetics Inc. debuted in New York City's Bergdorf Goodman. In 1996, Bobbi Brown Professional Cosmetics, Inc. was acquired by the Estee Lauder Companies, and is available in sixteen countries around the world, including such cities as Berlin, London, Dublin, and Tokyo. In the United States, you may find her makeup line at leading stores such as Neiman Marcus, Saks Fifth Avenue, Nordstrom, Bloomingdales, and Holt Renfrew in Canada.

How did Bobbi's enterprise ascend to such great heights in only ten years? She answers, "I built my company on a lot of the 'positive' rather than the negative," she told me. Many cosmetic companies tell women what's wrong with them at the counter, and I do the opposite.

"When I started the business, there was an artificial look and I was one of the first people who liked the natural look, and I am happy to take credit for that because I think it's helped so many women. I love when people come up to me and say, 'You know, I never felt so pretty in my life.'"

"And yet when they wear my makeup, their true beauty is all you see. I would rather see someone wearing no makeup at all, than an artificial look with a bad makeup job."

She became an author two years ago, with her first book, Bobbi Brown's Beauty, which sold 150,000 copies, and her second book, Teenage Beauty, which has just hit the bookstores now. As an author, targeting young girls, she again encourages them to enhance who they are "naturally," with an underlying message about self-esteem. It is intended for real girls, who want to look like models, but think they are too short or too tall or too big or too skinny, their hair is too straight or too curly or they have too many freckles.

Who's Here:

Bobbi Brown Beauty Expert

"Unfortunately, many mothers make their daughters feel insecure about their looks, because they themselves felt that way as teenagers. They say, 'Watch what you're eating, change your hair, dress this way or that way. Phew, I'm glad I have three boys.'"

Bobbi lives in New Jersey with her husband, Steven Plofker, who is a real estate developer and an attorney and their three sons, Dylan, 10, Dakota, 8, and Duke, who is 2.

She recalls when she grew up in a small suburb north of Chicago: "I always loved makeup as a little girl and I would play dress-up and play with my Mom's makeup. My cousin, who was also my best friend, made me play "Bonanza" and cops and robbers, and I just wanted to play Mommy and dress up.

"I get a lot of my inspiration in makeup through looking at my own children's faces. Everyone wants to look young because 'youth' is beautiful. And I think any age is beautiful, as long as you have smooth looking skin."

When asked if she goes in the sun, Bobbi answered, "How can you not go in the sun? I wear a hat and sunscreen most of the time, but I'm out there a lot as a soccer mom, and we also go kayaking."

"My favorite smell in the world is when my kids are done with the bath. I have one fragrance called "Bobbi" that reminds me of that. It is fresh and clean, out-of-the shower, with a little femininity; and I'm working on my second fragrance now."

Perhaps, it is every girl's dream to grow up into such an accomplished woman. But, Ms. Brown doesn't let the "fantasy" get to her. And perhaps, it is partly due to the fact that she keeps her feet on the ground. After all, it is the foundation of her whole theory on beauty – remain real. I inquired how she can remain so real, when she was just invited last week to the White House to see the movie The Patriot with the Clintons. "I admit, she giggled, it blew my mind, too." "That was an invitation I couldn't refuse." She was told what colors to wear to coordinate with what the President and the First Lady were wearing.

As far as celebrities are concerned, she thinks Brooke Shields is one of her favorites. "Aside from being beautiful, she is just so sweet. I always remember when we were working on an Italian magazine together, and after we finished eating, she got up and cleared the table."

"And Christie Brinkley and Susan Sarandon are ageless," she said in a tone of astonishment. Then, Bobbi laughed as she told me about a recent television guest who came on after her own segment. "It was Tammy Faye Baker - the complete antithesis of what I stand for."

"Also, our family loves sports, and we are lucky to be neighbors and very good friends of Yogi Berra. We were with him when he went back to Yankee Stadium for the first time, and being the Mom of three boys, it was thrilling."

Ms. Brown describes herself as being open and happy . . . and too busy. I try to relax, while out in the Hamptons by going to Lotte Berk, four times a week, which is a combination of yoga, stretching and ballet exercise. And I just love the fresh produce out here.

"More than anything," she added, I just want to be a really good Mom, because it goes by so quickly."

The way Bobbi Brown prioritizes makeup, shows true beauty on the outside; the way she prioritizes her own life, shows beauty on the inside. ●

On Friday, August, 18, Ms. Brown will be at Saks Fifth Avenue in Southampton, to sign copies of her book and give beauty tips.

scrapie monitoring program was initiated in the early '90s, it was not thought that European sheep had been fed the carcasses of their own species, but later it had been discovered that in many European countries this had indeed been the case. It was the case in Belgium. It was in 1996, the year that the Belgium sheep came to Vermont, that "there was experimental evidence that sheep could get BSE from eating it."

Ms. Detwiler said, "A lot of people think that an animal gets BSE just by eating its own species, but the infection does not come from that alone. The animal has to eat feed tainted with BSE."

She added that there is still a lot of debate about the cause of TSEs. "One train of thought has it that only the prion agent is necessary; other researchers think it is the prion along with a small but so far undetected, bit of genetic material."

Prions, she said are so alike in each species, that a prion taken from one sheep and put into another would not engender an immune response, hence the lack of antibodies in animals infected with scrapie or mad cow.

On August 13, London's Sunday Times reported that a cluster of vCJD cases in Queniborough, Leicestershire, may be linked to a knacker's that sold meat from diseased animals. The yard dealt with meat that was not fit for human consumption and was sold to zoos and for pet food. This dates back to the early '80s, when it is believed mad cow took hold in Britain. The owners of the concern were fined for the unhealthy practices, but authorities are now looking through the company's past records in order to see if tainted meat was in fact sold for human consumption. Under an investigation called Operation Meat Hook, two meat traders from Bedfordshire were convicted in 1982 of buying unapproved beef in Leicester and selling it to a butcher in Hertfordshire who did not know the meat was not to be sold to people.

From 1990-94, seventy-two cases of BSE were found in house cats in England. From 1995-99 the numbers dropped off to twenty-four, probably due to the September, 1990 ban on bovine offals in animal feed.

Dava Sobel has always been interested in Science. Her father was a doctor and her mother was a chemist. These two intelligent and well-educated people found science more than interesting; they read about it and talked about it at home. Dava Sobel claims to have been lucky to have had some good early teachers who continued to make science an attractive subject. She attended the Bronx High School of Science, but knew early on that she did not have the temperament to be a scientist. However, she did not know quite what to do about it. In college, she had five majors in three separate schools, and claims that she "fell into being a reporter" and it was not until later by writing about science related events, that she finally felt happy and comfortable.

Along with Sobel's love of science is her passion for the history of science. "When you look at the history of techniques or explorations it's always interesting to me to go back to the times when those things weren't known. So when I first heard about this longitude symposium I proposed it as a magazine story to many, many magazines which all turned me down. Fortunately for me, Harvard Magazine had an editorial change of decision and let me come up and cover it. My now publisher read it because he is an alumnus and he then asked me if I could expand the idea into a book. And that is how it all started. Once that book became a best seller, the publisher was ready to do another."

Dava Sobel's first newspaper job was for the Binghamton Evening and Sunday Press. Later, she wrote for several of the Cornell University publications, and wrote for Harvard Magazine where eventually she developed a column entitled FINDINGS, which Sobel describes as very much like the Ideas and Trends Section of The Week in Review in The New York Times. One day she actually received a call from the editor of the Week In Review at The Times saying that he had been reading her column in Harvard Magazine, and he invited her to "audition" for a job at the Times. She auditioned for the Times for two weeks. After the first week, she knew that she was not a serious candidate for the job and she told the editor how she felt. And he replied, "There's an opening on Science Times, are you interested?" She jumped

Ross Institute Presents A CELEBRATION OF EDUCATORS

The Ross Institute Alliance for Learning welcomes you to its new home for an open house, tour and lecture. The evening will feature a lecture by Dr. Peggy McIntosh, the Associate Director of the Wellesley College Center for Research on Women. She is the Founder and Co-director of the National S.E.E.D. Project on Inclusive Curriculum (Seeking Educational Equity and Diversity). She consults with college and school faculty who are creating gender-fair and multicultural curricula.

In her talk, "Teachers Keeping Courage," Dr. McIntosh will describe some of the pressures that result from high-stakes testing and analyze anti-democratic political and social outcomes of such testing. She will describe different types of excellence which can develop in students who have been educated in modes beyond win/lose. In addition to publishing several ground-breaking books, Dr. McIntosh recently received the Klingenstein Award for Distinguished Educational Leadership from Columbia Teachers College. review: music, music, music

By Jan Silver

The ability of music—or any of the fine and performing arts—to refresh and inspire hearts and minds is inexplicable. Such phenomena are occurring in Bridgehampton this month. Euphoric audiences are spilling out of the prim Bridgehampton Presbyterian Church four times a week. Why?

The Bridgehampton Chamber Music Festival, now in its 17th year, is having a grand-slam season. The Festival's director, flutist Marya Martin, invites outstanding musicians from all over the world to play a mix of classic and contemporary music. This year's programming is so inviting that many concerts are sellouts.

Last Sunday evening, Broadway star and recording artist Audra McDonald performed the songs of young American composer Adam Guettel with Guettel present and accompanying her onstage. Backed by eight Festival artists and Broadway musical director Ted Sperling, McDonald and Guettel transported the audience with the emotional purity of his music and the incredible range of her voice. They performed "Baby Moon," a mother's moving ballad to her unborn child, and songs from three of Guettel's musicals (Floyd Collins, Light in the Piazza, and Myths and Hymns which originally debuted at the New York Public Theater as Saturn Returns in 1998).

Although Adam Guettel may have inherited some musical ability from his composer grandfather Richard Rodgers and mother Mary Rodgers Guettel, the lilting melodies, humor and drama of his music is all his own. He also writes or adapts all the lyrics for his music, which makes his talent doubly formidable.

The work of two other contemporary American composers opened the evening. Michael Kamen, a graduate of New York City's Music & Art high school and Juilliard who impressively composes rock, pop and classical music, was represented by two lyrical, melodious classical pieces, "Cut Sleeves" and "Prayer" from The New Moon in the Old Moon's Arms. Paul Moravec's "Mood Swings" is a moving, vigorous work with some twelve-tone shadings.

Music from Mozart, Schumann, Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Dvorak, Strauss, Copland and Joplin can still be heard this week before the Festival closes on Sunday night, August 20. The Thursday, August 17, program at 5 p.m. "Feet Got the Beat" features tango, waltz and rag with a professional dance teacher (the Festival encourages dancing in the aisles!). For tickets to the final concerts ($25 adults, $20 seniors, $10 children), call (631) 537-6368.

at that opportunity and the job became hers.

How did Ms. Sobel go from Longitude, her first book, to Galileo's Daughter?

She explains, "Galileo was one of the many people who had tried to solve the longitude problem." While reading a book about his efforts in that direction written by Italian writer, Silvio Bedini, Sobel came across a fragment from one of her letters and was thunderstruck, first of all because she never knew that he had had a daughter. And furthermore the letter made it clear that she was a nun. "Which was remarkable, because as an American child growing up in New York, I was taught that he (Galileo) was the greatest threat to the Catholic Church. And here was a letter from a nun who was not only close to him but intimate, and how could there be such a gulf? Maybe there wasn't a gulf? Maybe that was a populist misconception? If so, then what was the deeper story about his science and religion?"

This turned out to be a fruitful question to ask. "There was a tremendous amount of material supporting that he had not made a distinction between science and religion."

Which as it turns out is true about many scientists. "Other greats from that age, Kepler for example, was very religious. They used their religion as inspiration. They felt that God wanted them to discover these things," says Sobel.

Her agent was traveling in Italy when she started thinking about the Galileo project, and knowing that the nun's letters had been published in Italian, she suggested that the agent pick up a copy while he was there. He found it and brought it back, allowing her to work on the letters at home. Had she been forced to work from the original letters she would have had to stay in Italy for months. She did go to Italy however, to review the letters in their original form. How did it feel to see and touch the original letters? "Heart-stopping. I tend to be overly emotional about things like this. They bring the original letters into a room for reading selections of rare manuscripts. Everyone there is doing something wonderful. They bring the things to you. I couldn't even touch it for the first few minutes. And then when you open it, there they are. Along with her letters are all the letters that Galileo received from the women in his life. There was one from his mother. He had a female neighbor who wrote to him while he was on trial. Her letters were chatty and she was always looking for something small for herself, like a Papal dispensation she thought he could get for her."

The process of writing Galileo's Daughter took Dava Sobel five years and she enjoyed it so much that she was sorry when the process was finished. Luckily for us, not only did she finish it, it is a marvelous book that has been the recipient of several awards including the prestigious Steinbeck Award. Dava Sobel will be at Guild Hall on Sunday, August 20, 2000, at 2 p.m. talking about and reading from her most recent book, Galileo's Daughter, to be followed by a book signing.

SENSE IN THE CITY.

What if peace of mind, a genuine sense of well being and purpose, and a simple delight in every minute of every hour were yours for the asking?

What if emptiness, frustration and isolation were things of the past, replaced by a whole new incentive to get out of bed in the morning? Right now, right here, in the agita capital of the universe.

"Oh, right," did you say? Well it does sound like an overpromise. Then again, just suppose you could have a life where things actually work, instead of a life that seems like work?

A phone call costs maybe a quarter. Checking out www.opencenter.org costs zip. And you wouldn't mind feeling considerably better about life. Would you?

recover animals beyond help. Last winter they performed an autopsy on a 55 foot female fin back whale washed ashore at Moriches Inlet. She died of an ectopic pregnancy. They found a dead fetus, the size of a hand, within an infected fallopian tube. That infection led to this would-be mother's death. The whale's skeletal remains are being currently being prepared for a display.

But life usually prevails and Plover is another story that seems to be headed for a happy ending. This hooded seal was brought in from Jones Beach, at the end of July. He was sick, malnourished and exhausted. Within days he was eating eight pounds of herring a day, gaining weight and responding to antibiotics. He will be released in a few weeks, ready for a full life at sea.

Just as the Riverhead Foundation for Marine Research assists mammals in distress, they need help also. Volunteers supplement the three full time staff members. Corporate donations from Costco and Walbaums have supplemented the Foundation's ever dwindling supplies but the public has made up the difference. "We always need bleach, detergents; we disinfect everything," said Kimberly referring to the sanitary conditions the hospital section demands. "We always need towels, blankets, comforters, but no zippers or buttons." These are used during a capture when every effort is taken to reduce the stress and damage a struggling animal may incur. "We love seeing people drop off a bag of old towels at the front gate."

The Riverhead Foundation for Marine Research reaches out to the community, as well as stranded mammals. They organize field trips to their Riverhead facilities, local beaches and off shore waters. Their lecture program enlightens all to the wonders of the sea and their classroom visitation activities let children in on the mysteries and beauty of the ocean. Reach out to them at 631-369-9840. They are always ready with a glad hand and world of knowledge to share. •

The Sheltered Island By Sally Flynn

OBSERVATIONS OF AN ISLANDER #119 BEACHES WITH SNEECHES

Shelter Island has four main beaches; Sunset Beach, Hay Beach, Wades Beach and Shell Beach.

Sunset Beach is the largest beach. Very touristy. No sand, it's a pebble beach. Bring water shoes or old sneakers to go on the beach. Pebbles hold more heat than sand. You can look like you're Riverdancing to your selected spot. Also bring heavily padded beach blankets because the pebbles don't do the body mold thing that sand does. And bring a lot of money. The concession is killer. You might consider stopping at Fedi's first, by the Post Office. The Deli is terrific, everything is fresh and the sandwiches are so thick, half of one is practically a meal.

The Town put in nice public restrooms at Sunset Beach last season. I think this beach has the best sunsets on the Island, hence it's name. The Master Painter is out every night. Great place to have a coke and sandwich in the evening, let the kids run themselves out and watch rivers of color burn across the evening sky.

A personal note: Four years ago my son lost a small yellow plastic starfish sand mold on Sunset Beach, the tide carried it away. He looks for it everytime we go there. Obsessed you say? What was the clue? If you happen to find a small yellow plastic starfish sand mold, please call me. This kid is driving me nuts... which is a short trip in my case anyway.

Hay Beach is a long drive to the north end of the Island. It's a nice beach, good combo of sand and pebble. Excellent shell hunting. It's imperative if you live here to maintain a decent shell collection on your dashboard. You have to have at least one conch shell, in case you need to listen to the ocean in an emergency. You should have two good multi-color scallop shells with you at all times because they have all the approved nautical colors in them. You never know when you'll have a "Caint Wait to Paint" attack. If you have your trusty scallop shells with you, you can run into any hardware store and use the shell as a color guide. Little horseshoe crabs look good on the dashboard too, plus the pointy tails make an excellent ferry ticket holder.

Shell Beach can be seen on our maps, but it's tricky to drive to since most of the streets in the area are unmarked. It's a long drive down a bad road once you do find it. Shell Beach is a long curved peninsula dotted with a series of mini-beaches. You can almost always find a private spot.

I took my kids last week and quite by surprise we discovered a clothing-optional mini-beach. I was driving at the time, but my daughter's scream of, "Oh God! He's naked!" gave it away. I can't add much more to that report because he got away by the time I got there. But the people who were there were stunned I admit, when I came around the bend with my optional clothing over my arm. But I made $40 bucks when they paid me to get dressed. I just might have found a new source of income....

Shell Beach is definitely for you if you're a teenager, dating a teenager, think you can still act like a teenager, or just engaged in the covert activity of your choice. Lotsa little private spots and since there's only one road in, you can see any car coming and you have plenty of time to get dressed and pull out a map and pretend you're lost. It's not a good beach for illicit affairs though, since most people old enough to have an affair are too old to have one in a car.

Shell Beach is the official Graduation Party Beach. The police simply station a car at the end of the road and a graduate can't leave unless an adult picks them up. That's just in case there's anything going on that might impair the graduate's judgement. But then again, if their judgement was impaired, how would we know?

Wade's Beach is the best family beach. Easy parking, nice bathrooms, good concession. The Good Humor ice cream truck comes there. (Give me a Toasted Almond, or Give Me Death). It's a sandy beach and the land doesn't drop off too fast. I hate it when the kids go out three feet and their heads disappear. Usually lotsa families and kids. I advise against bringing any fancy water toys that your kids will have to defend. I recommend simple things; one bucket, one shovel, one big plastic noodle. Kids love those big noodles.

As you sit on the beach, you can watch a noodle beating battle. And if you brought a poodle with your noodle, you can watch a poodle's noodle beating battle. And if your poodle's eating strudel, this is what we call a strudel poodle's noodle beating battle. And if your children brought a paddle, THIS is what we call a strudel poodle's noodle beating paddle battle, and.....WARNING: The portion of my brain that used to contain art appreciation, knowledge of music, some tidbits of culture has been replaced with an extensive collection of Suess. I am no longer well versed, I am now well Suessed in literature. •

Luxuries

Hampton Luxuries

Wanna jazz up your swimming pool? One home owner in East Hampton recently contracted J. Torterella Pool and Spa to install a long shopping list of additions along with a pool, which in the end cost $1.5 million. The items on the shopping list included a waterfall, spa, cabana, Pergula, gazebo, arbor, barbecue, a bar and kitchen. Pictured here is the Grecian urn fountain installed at this site. It is made of lead (stone is also available), and includes five jets, bluestone perimeter, lighting, pump and filter to make a fabulous and wondrous display. It cost $53,000 with installation, but you have to add the water yourself.

Even though it's August, I've been traveling this week. It's strange! Working in a seasonal business, I've never gone away in August. It's a little worrisome but I think the gallery will function without me. I couldn't resist learning more about politics and coming to the Convention. One of the hardest things about leaving was trying to wrap up loose ends beforehand. My desk has been an incredible mess all summer. I was determined to clear it before setting out on my adventure. Bills had to be paid, clients contacted about pending orders, packages shipped, phone calls returned, etc. I tried to find time to order a cell phone and get an E-mail address before leaving but didn't manage.

I wanted to be reachable. Oh well, I'll just have to phone home regularly.

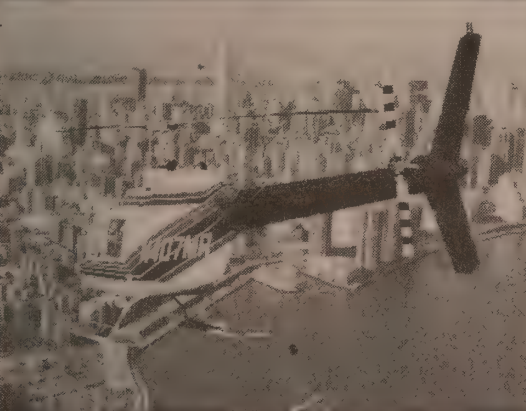

Many friends and members of my family have been annoyed with me that they can't E-mail me. I even had an ex boyfriend who lives in Hawaii tell me that my lack of E-mail was bad for our relationship. I'm sorry but I already have trouble keeping up with all my business correspondence. People tell me E-mail would make it easier. What can I say? I'm a creature of habit. Part of the difficulty is that don't know which server will work the best for me in my little town of Puerto Adolfo Lopez Mateos. In the winter is when I need the services the most and when I'll have time to correspond. Telephone rates are high in Mexico and if I can find a company with a local access it could make life easier. Buying a cell phone has similar problems. Most companies want you to sign up for a monthly rental contract. I'm away for three to four months and want to be able to suspend my contract or have it work for me in both my residences. So far I haven't found the deal that's designed for my lifestyle.

Having arrived in Los Angeles on Saturday, there was little to do except people watch. The Democratic National Convention brought me to LA but the Convention was running from Monday

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

"The Schacters From Philadelphia"

July 24, 1985

Just about a year ago, George Plimpton and his wife Freddie received a phone call here at their East Hampton home.

"It's a television station in Connecticut," Freddie said, holding out the phone. "They want to know if they could auction you off."

The television station, it turned out, was holding an auction for a worthy cause. Would it be possible, they wanted to know, for George and his wife to be a prize? All they'd have to do would be to agree to have dinner one evening with the highest bidder. It could be either in New York or in East Hampton. Wherever they said. Even whenever they said.

George consulted with Freddie and they decided to agree to it. It was a worthy cause. It might even be fun. Arrangements were thus made for the Plimptons to host the winners, first at their New York apartment for a drink, and then at the Mama Leone Restaurant on West 46 Street for a full dinner. This would be on a Thursday evening scheduled four weeks away.

Sure enough almost exactly four weeks later they got a phone call from the television station telling them dinner with the Plimptons was one of the most popular items in the auction. The bidding had gone up and up and up and the winners were a Mr. and Mrs. Schacter from Philadelphia. The next call would be from the Schacters.

The Schacters, of course, were breathless. They could hardly wait. Was there anything they could bring? They'd be there at 7 p.m. that Thursday.

On the appointed evening, Mr. and Mrs. Schacter arrived at the Plimpton's apartment exactly on the dot of seven. They were a nice enough couple and if they talked too much and too fast it was probably understandable. They would want to get everything in.

George sat in the living room for awhile talking with Mr. Schacter while Mrs. Schacter and Freddie went into the kitchen and made some drinks. When the women came out, drinks in hand, George saw there was an odd expression on Freddie's face. Something was wrong.

It took about ten minutes for George to find a way to get his wife alone. They were in the hall.

"What is going on?" George whispered.

"Having dinner with us," Freddie said, "is costing them a FORTUNE. In fact, according to Mrs. Schacter, it is their life savings. And he doesn't even know that she did this."

"Why DID she do it?" George wanted to know. "Because Mr. Schacter has written a book and she wants to help him get it published. She figured if she could arrange this meeting, if she could arrange this dinner, then it would happen."

"My God."

"It's very touching," Freddie said.

George gave it a good deal of thought. Could he arrange to find a book publisher in one night? Probably not. But he would give it his best try. He went back into the living room, excused himself, and snuck back out to the hall, where, on the hall phone, he cancelled the dinner at Mama Leone's. Nothing would happen at Mama Leone's. But something might happen at Elaine's, the literary hangout at 1703 Second Avenue where authors, editors and book publishers congregate. It was worth a shot.

The BUNKHOUSE THEATER COMPANY

Fourth Season!!

Spend a weekend in Montauk and explore the craft of acting..

"Gary Swanson is first rate. He is himself a splendid actor and teacher of extraordinary skill. He is a cherished member of the Actors Studio."
Arthur Penn

an ACTING intensive

Gary is a lifetime member of The Actors Studio. He was featured in "The Bone Collector" with Denzel Washington and has starred in numerous feature films, television and theater productions. He is also an established teacher and director and was one of the first of four teachers to pilot The Actors Studio MFA program at the New School.

Beginners, Intermediates and Professionals taught by a staff of actor/teachers trained in The Method.

Held in a country home, near the ocean.

"Gary is a joy to work with and has been an inspiration to me." - Lainie Kazan

"Gary Swanson is what acting is all about."
Tuesday Weld

"Gary has shown me how to use tools I never knew I had at my disposal. What he teaches is not mysterious voodoo, it is a method which allows for creative expansion into every cell of one's body through gentle and safe exploration of memories and the senses which are their gatekeeper."
Mary Stuart Masterson

"Gary has helped me to see things in scenes I never would have discovered on my own and Montauk is the perfect environment."
Valerie Perrine

"We've had a little change of plans," George said after returning to the living room. "We're not going to Mama Leone's. I've booked us to have dinner at a place called Elaine's."

Neither Mr. or Mrs. Schacter had ever heard of Elaine's, but it made no difference to them. So long as they were with the Plimptons.

George had hoped that there might be one, even two literary stars at Elaine's that evening. But when he, Freddie and the Schacters walked in, he could hardly believe his eyes.

"Hello Norman," he said to Norman Mailer who was seated at the first table they went to. "I want you to meet Mr. Schacter, the author from Philadelphia."

Norman Mailer stood up and shook hands with

Mr. Schacter.

They went on to the next table.

"Hello Tom," George said to Tom Wolfe, (The Right Stuff). "I want you to meet Mr. Schacter, the author from Philadelphia."

Tom Wolfe shook hands with Mr. Schacter.

At the next table, there was Kurt Vonnegut (Slaughterhouse Five) sitting with the late Irwin Shaw (Evening in Byzantium).

Both of these gentlemen stood up and shook hands with the famous Mr. Schacter from Philadelphia.

Down at the corner of the dining room, there was a table at which Woody Allen sat. There was an unwritten rule at Elaine's that you could go over to any table you wanted to speak to people you knew, but you could never go over and bother Woody Allen.

That was just the way it was. Still, as the maitre d' proceeded to take the foursome through the dining room, it was apparent they were going to pass right by Woody Allen's table to get to their own. What would they do?

Woody Allen solved that problem for them. As they came by, he looked up, smiled at George Plimpton and said "I see you've already met my friend from Philadelphia, the author Mr. Schacter."

Six months later, George Plimpton once again received a phone call from Mr. Schacter. He was sorry to bother him, but he was all excited. He had found a publisher. And his book would be out within the year. He was calling to thank him for everything.

"And by the way," Mr. Schacter said, "give my regards to the gang at Elaine's." —Dan Rattiner on. Saturday's arrival allowed time to catch up with jet lag and get our bearings. By next week I can write more about the way the actual Convention works. So far I've been meeting a lot of politicians. It's interesting.

Flying across the country and being in a different time zone has a surreal quality to it. I've spoken to clients and my employees throughout the week and managed to answer questions and fulfill client requests. At one point I spoke to my friend John (who worked on Sunday) and he said the weather had turned chilly and it was very windy. In Los Angeles it was sunny and hot. We spoke one evening when it was still light in LA. It was getting late in N.Y. and he was preparing to go to sleep.

I hadn't planned on any board meetings or charity work while I was traveling. I was looking at the trip as a vacation of sorts. I'm missing a benefit committee meeting for Fish Unlimited that's about cleaning up Lake Agawam. I'll have to play catch up when I return. My girlfriend Nancy Butner runs a not for profit organization called the International Toy Bank. I'm on its advisory board. The Toy Bank distributes new toys to needy children all over the world. There is a trip planned to Uganda in early 2001. Patch Adams is on the advisory board and has been a great help. The Toy Bank is in need of warehouse space on both coasts and I promised to mention the need. Nancy works hard to expand the reach of the Toy Bank. I keep telling her that the board has to work together to make any organization function. This organization has the potential to reach a lot of children and spread a lot of joy. Distribution is most active at Christmas time but the Toy Bank also tries to reach children after floods and other natural disasters. Food and housing takes precedence but something as simple as a beanie baby can do its part to make the children focus on something other than despair. Anyone interested in helping can get in touch with me and I'll help make the contact. I can't ignore the need.

HEADLINE NEWS

Visitors Center – and Tours – for Plum Island?

The new director of the Animal Disease Research Center at Plum Island, David Huxsoll, wants to improve relations with the East End by opening a visitors center to educate residents about the work that is carried out on the island.

The center would be located at Orient Point, where workers are ferried over to Plum Island across Plum Gut on a special ferry. Orient Point is also the location of a ferry that goes to New London (and which passes right by Plum Island).

Huxsoll, who assumed directorship of Plum Island in June, was formerly the head of the pathobiology department at Louisiana State University. He said that a visitors center would have a history of the work done on Plum Island going back to its use as a military base during World War II.

Huxsoll's community outreach doesn't stop there: he wants to have tours of Plum Island on a regular basis. This would help to demystify the island's work to residents of the area, he says. Huxsoll feels that a visitors center would be an appropriate jumping off place for tours of Plum Island.

It should be noted that all visitors to the island, along with its daily workers, must undergo decontamination procedures upon entering the island and departing.

Local reaction to Huxsoll's proposal is mixed. Some feel this would force the research center to be more open with the community; others believe the government would simply color any presentation to put its work in a favorable light.

Polo

POLO Bridgehampton could have been called Benzhampton because Mercedes Benz was sponsoring two events on the same day, polo and pre prix. The cold and threatening weather allowed the fashion conscious to show off their designer wraps and sweaters for this chilly Saturday- But the talk was hot and the game was high scoring (meaning the polo match, not those trying to give or get telephone numbers). The Mercedes Benz Polo Challenge match had AIG versus La Lechuza. During the match, I was a guest on the TV show at the matches produced by WVVH. Yes, I gave it a plug. I also found out what a small world it is..my husband David Post Once owned that TV license and sold it to the Schimizzi brothers, who are the present owner/operators.

The home and the 'fixins' were anything but stark. Andrea and John Stark had a party for friends, golfers and tennis partners at their home in Westhampton. PRE US GRAND PRIX PARTY

Say that five times quickly. For what may have been the world's most chic car show, Mercedes Benz along with sponsor teammates Hugo Boss and Tag Heuer held a party to show off its Formula One car in Bridgehampton. People got in with press pass looking invitations or if they exemplified exceptional attitude at the gate. All guests will rave about the performance of Wycleaf Jean, some will praise the cars on display, but I also heard lots of bravos for the walnut chocolate chip cookies.

"Fourth Annual GLAAD Summer Party"

Cocktails and hors d'oeuvres were served at the home of Lance Kash and Mark Gray on Saturday and a festive time was had by the over 200 guests at the annual GLAAD (Gay & Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation) Summer Party. The event is quickly becoming a summer favorite by the local gays and lesbians. It was announced there has been much progress in GLAAD's crusade to educate the public against the harms of Dr. Laura Schlessinger and the controversy surrounding her anti-gay comments. In the past three months many of her other highest-profile sponsors, including Procter & Gamble; Sears, Roebuck & Co.; General Food; Kraft; Toys "R" Us; Gateway; AT&T, Xerox; United Airlines have disassociated themselves from her programming. Bravo GLAAD.

"Evening of Jazz" Benefits Boys Harbor

A lively mix of music by The Heath Brothers, a jazz quartet, and the special blend of Dr. Paul Jeffery and his Jazz Orchestra combined to lift the spirits of all who joined Honorary Chairperson, Jayni & Chevy Chase at the 2nd annual "Evening of Jazz" to benefit Boys Harbor (The Harbor for Girls and Boys). There was also a special Dance performance choreographed by Premier Ballerinas. Cynthia Gregory and Ann Marie de Angelo. The evening, kindly underwritten by Sylvia & David Steiner, is proving to be a main attraction for jazz fans as well as the children of the Harbor. See you next year.

"When We Were Young" Benefits the HayGround School

On Sunday, August 15, in the Hayground spirit, lovers of literature baved Sunday's storm and clustered beneath a tent in Bob Dash's Majestic garden, Madoo Conservancy. Children with shekeres accompanied by drummers and vocalist Tiye Giraud, warmed the listeners for Nappy Hair, read in tandem by Kate Capshaw and her daughter, Jessica. Host Roy Scheider read Edgar Allan Poe's "The Bells." Hamilton communicated with drums and words. Even the rain stopped to listen.

CHARTER

...Focus on the North Fork

To the people of France the entrancing isle of Corsica in the Mediterranean is their 'Isle de Beaute'. When Jeannette Charvet found the house in Greenport that she wanted to convert into her French Provencal Restaurant and Creperie, being of Corsican descent, she had no doubt about the choice for its name. "My family came from a beautiful island and now I live here on this beautiful island," she explained in her charmingly accented voice. "Catering and restaurants are in my blood. Whatever the family has done we always seem to come back to the restaurant business. My mother opened the first chain of creperies in New York and today, in her mid 80's, she still shows us how to prepare them to her standards."

This new restaurant opened its doors in April of this year and is housed in an exceptionally beautiful old house located on Main Street, which is now a focal point for the surrounding area of town. When you enter the restaurant there is an immediate sense of warmth and comfortable elegance reminiscent of a French country house. "As soon as I saw this house I knew this was the one," Jeannette went on. "It is over 100 years old and was in use as a dental surgery. It took a lot of work to restore the place and it was not easy to find craftsmen who were able to do the work to our standards. I was not prepared to compromise so, as a result, we lost almost a year before we were ready to open for business, but I believe the final result was worth all of the effort."

The restaurant can seat around sixty in the two dining areas, which can be separated for special functions by the sliding wooden doors. They are original fittings of the house, as are the two fireplaces and the ceiling moldings.

After our initial look around, we looked in even more detail at the menu to decide our choices for the evening. While gaspacho is more traditionally associated with Spain, we could not resist this on a warm summer evening. Our choice was amply rewarded as we tasted the chilled blend of tomato, cucumber, oil and vinegar, plus that added zest of garlic which delivers the tang and bite to the soup and which is often missing when prepared in restaurants here. The soup had a delightful soft and velvety texture with a color to match the intensity of flavor.

Our next dish was tasty chevre (goat cheese) melted to exactly the correct fluffy texture and served with walnuts on a bed of mesclun. This dish was made special by the drizzle of honey over the cheese which really balanced all the complex flavors very well.

Provencal cooking uses garlic as a major ingredient and this was amply confirmed in the next dishes we tried. Both the escargots and the frogs legs were simply prepared in a garlic, parsley and butter sauce which allowed the natural delicate tastes to come through. By this time of the evening the dining room was full of the atmospheric music of an accordion as Joe Thomas effortlessly moved from one French song to another. The restaurant has live music on Friday and weekend evenings and on special holidays such as Bastille Day.

After cleansing our palates we moved on to sample the crab fritters which were full of fresh crab meat and perfectly crisp on the outside and moist inside. The delicate crab was complemented by the sherry and red pepper sauce which accompanied the dish.

Ile de Beaute chef, Jerry Mohr, is a native of Alsace and has cooked in the south of France, Corsica, Alsace and Paris and he features a good selection of fish and shell fish dishes on his menu. We decided to try the shrimp cooked Provencale style with tomatoes, garlic, parsley and butter. This is a dish which is inherently simple, but in common with most simple dishes, requires the freshest of ingredients and the shrimp and must be perfectly cooked. Our dish was delightfully presented and cooked as was the accompanying rice which was cooked to perfection with each grain separate and moist.

Choosing our meat dish at first seemed difficult but in reality, there was no other choice but the rack of lamb. Finding lamb which matches that served in France or Australia is difficult here but the provençal crusted rack of New Zealand lamb was cooked exactly to our request and the seasoned crust and thyme sauce really enabled us to appreciate this to the fullest. The lamb was served with dauphinois potatoes and tomato provençal but the latter was disappointingly undercooked and lacking in taste.

For dessert we had to try a crepe based dish but this was only partially successful as the ice cream with the crepe belle helene rapidly cooled and spoiled the texture of the crepe. As the Creperie serves 110 savory and sweet varieties of crepe, we decided that this really is a subject which requires an investigation in more depth at another time!

As chocoholics, we could not resist the lures of a petit pot au chocolat served with warm mocha cream sauce. This, with a welcome coffee, brought a very enjoyable meal to a fitting conclusion.

By this time the sun had set and the outside of the restaurant was transformed and bathed in soft lights. Tables set on the patio had quickly been filled with diners on this warm, beautiful evening and the atmosphere became increasingly romantic. All really good French restaurants seem to exude this subtle air of romanticism and Ile de Beaute is no exception. Many of the interesting ornaments and decor relate to Corsica's legendary son, Napoleon Bonaparte, and you should look at the portrait in the bar area of a dashing handsome young man and see how it differs from the more usual portraits of the Emperor as a rotund, older man.

Recommendation:

Jeannette Charvet and her long time associate, Judy Heinle, have given Greenport a building and a restaurant which enhances the area. The restaurant is a short walk from the Shelter Island ferry terminal, so for folks from Shelter Island and the South Fork it is readily accessible. The food sets out to be authentic to Provence and, in general, it succeeds. The restaurant will be open year round except for a while in February. The prix fixe dinner is $35 and there are lunch and Sunday brunch menus as well. The restaurant has a sensible wine list including wines of Corsica for the adventurous. The Chardonnay is very drinkable, if not outstanding, and is modestly priced.

The majority of the waitstaff are very young, but Jeannette and Judy have trained them well and this shows in the efficient way the dining room ran during our visit.

Ile de Beaute is a romantic spot whether on a summer night or during the fall or winter. Provençal food, to remind you, is strong on garlic in many dishes, so tasting your loved one's dish is probably a good idea if you do not want to risk spoiling the rest of a beautiful evening by hearing - "Not tonight, Josephine- or Joe" - as the case may be!

DAN TRAVELS

by your eardrums as you strain to hear that useless expensive stereo that was included in your convertible's price. Personally, I'm glad ragtops are back in vogue. I love 'em all.

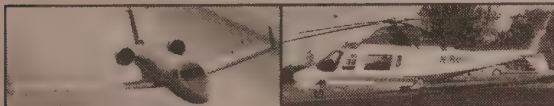

The fickle public in the last few years has found a new craze, the four wheel drive vehicle. These massive machines are more popular in the Hamptons than sports cars. Twenty years ago, unless you were an enlisted man in uniform, and were forced to drive a Jeep, you didn't want one. They're "big, handle like trucks, and drink fuel like a Peterbuilt. I'm not quite sure why they appeal to so many different types. Many years ago I used to imagine the future with sleek bullet-shaped cars whizzing "around the highways at 150 miles per hour. The reality is that, today, we are all driving boxes on wheels; skittish about driving above the silly fifty-five mile per hour speed limit!

In the '50s, the Ford Motor Company tried to sell safety features in their vehicles. Sales slumped because the buying public didn't give a darn. Today, safety seems to be the latest fickle craze. Cars are becoming over equipped with safety devices: air bags in the doors, automatic seat belt tighteners, daytime running lights. I'm surprised the government doesn't just mandate that all cars become giant air bags on wheels, painted dayglow orange. Predictions of future fickle: four wheel drive cars that get better fuel economy, car colors that change at your whim, all cars will be equipped with moving map displays. You'll finally know how to find Sagaponack. An electric car that has a range of more than 500 miles. It will be against the law to produce a street legal car that has a top speed of more than 290 miles per hour. Gasoline will become really expensive. The Porsche will still have the same shape in 2025. Last, and most lamented, there will be an HOV lane to Easthampton.

Shop 'til You Drop ...With Maria Tennariello

Well, I hate to say it but, it's back to school shopping already. The shops are gearing for the fall fashions and back to school necessities. In a way, I am looking forward to the fall so that the traffic eases up a bit, it makes my job so much easier.

If you're in Westhampton Beach, be sure to stop into Beach Country for their "midsummer clearance sale" with savings of up to 70% on all summer sportswear including regular and plus sizes, hats, bags, sunglasses and jewelry.

Need books? Stop in at Oaktree Books located in Hampton Bays for your hard cover New York Times best sellers with a 30% off discount. Also there is 20% off on your entire purchase, (not to be combined with other offers).

Old Town Crossing, on Main Street, has another new shipment from England which has just arrived. This shipment includes exquisite antique and private label furniture, interesting accessories and corporate and hostess gifts. Old Town Crossing offers designer prices to the trade and photographs upon request and also carries designer fabrics and distinctive home furnishings. A design staff is always on-site and able to offer you their professional advice. Open seven days a week, say hi to Penny for me!

Storytime is the place to go for toys, books, games, art supplies and school and teacher supplies for the new school semester. Located on Hampton Road in Southampton you will find educational toys and books here. Don't forget to ask them about "Storytime for Toddlers" on Wednesdays.

In Southampton at Sunrise to Sunset on Windmill Lane, look for their "Back to School" pre-season sale with 20% off all Quiksilver and Roxy clothing. There are hundreds of Quiksilver and Roxy backpacks in stock with a built tough lifetime guarantee. My grandsons Michael and Anthony have already picked theirs out.

Look for a summer sale from 1/2 to 1/3 off regular prices on summer merchandise at Rags on Jobs Lane in Southampton.

I know where I'm going! To Saks Fifth Avenue on Main Street in Southampton. Clinique presents Bold Moves and it is exclusive at Saks. I love the promo's and it's time for me to restock my cosmetic closet. Spend $35 or more and get a nice gift. Can't beat that one! Also, there is a 40% off on selected merchandise. Now is the time to shop 'til you drop!

On Southampton's Main Street, Oblio's Dream features Maria DeFilippis and Olga Sivkova with fine handcrafted Italian leather handbags and accessories, cashmere shawls and sweaters, shearling jackets, wraps and coats from the collection of Michael Robinson.

I made a quick stop at the Bridgehampton Commons to check out one of my favorite stores, T.J. Maxx. Starting Thursday, August 17, there will be a "Misses' & Men's Leather Event" going on. There will be a large selection of fine quality, famous name leather that is arriving on Thursday. For the ladies, choose from a great collection of leather or suede sportswear including pants, long and short skirts, vests and jackets in a variety of colors and prints. And for the men, there are great selections of rich, supple leather jackets and coats including the 3/4 lengths, bomber styles and much more. The best part? Save from 30% to 50% off department and specialty store prices. Remember, the early bird always catches the worm, so get going!

Have you been to King-Beck Fine Stationery yet? Located on Main Street in Bridgehampton, both moms and kids will be thrilled with all the fun and funky

"Back-to-School supplies. You will find rulers with calculators, grid notebooks in the newest hot colors and pencils, pads and magnetic bulletin boards. Trust me, this store has it all. It makes going back to school fun, doesn't it?

Get your shoe wardrobe together along with a bonus. At Shoe-Inn on Main Street's East Hampton store there are 15,000 pairs available. This is their "4th Annual Warehouse Sale" with all shoes starting at $15 to $100, values up to $445. All booties and boots start at $50 to $100, plus accessories. This sale is also happening at their Westhampton Beach store from Saturday, August 19 through Sunday August 27, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. You should know that a portion of the proceeds will be donated to the East Hampton Day Care Center.

In Home on Main Street in East Hampton has a lowest prices of the season sale on "Khaki" by my favorite, "Calvin Klein Home." For your back to school college bound, what a great buy! How about only $10 for the bath towel, $8 for the hand and $5 for the washcloth! The bath towel, has a belt loop for convenient hanging and is available in canvas, khaki and fennel colors. Wow!

In East Hampton at Steph's Stuff on Newtown Lane there is so much stuff for all occasions, including some school stuff... there is summer, jewelry, kid's, fun, toy, doll, vintage and cheap stuff at Steph's Stuff. Check it out.

Sag Harbor's Svenska has lovely furniture, table linens, dinnerware, flatware, crystal, paintings, sculptures, textiles, great gifts and very interesting things. Located on Washington Street in Sag Harbor, this is worth the trip.

Time flies by, oops, I almost forgot my appointment at Arline's Salon at the Omni in Southampton for my (ahem) color and cut. Arline's is a full service salon and her staff is always happy to accommodate you. Call for appointments at 283-7472.

My friends Anthony and Linda are coming for a visit this weekend, wonder what we will do for entertainment? Give you one guess!

Until next week. Ciao and Happy Back-to-School Shopping!

Back To School

Python And Color For Back To School

If any one word defines Back-to-School trends for the savvy teen and preteen it's flexible. All the rules of style are being redefined as teens put together looks uniquely their own, based on their individual attitudes and interests. "The looks are bold, often body conscious, yet very comfortable," explains T.J. Maxx fashion spokesperson Laura Cervone. "From silly to sassy, whimsical to serious, the mix and matched looks are defined by the wearer as we've never seen before." Top trends are shimmering python paired with bursts of color, 'dirty' denim; fleece; novelty screen T-shirts and more.

Key Looks

Anything Python- Every teen will look for warm-blooded animal prints in pants, boots and accessories. This noteworthy print is paired with very bright tops or other accessories, often in competing patterns. Indeed, the rules of fashion are all put aside this season as pattern on top of pattern, seemingly mismatched colors and separates all team together to create "the look."

Pleather, leather and glider fabrics in the brightest red or the coolest silver, these fabrics are must-haves! Teens will go luxe (fabulous leather) or fake it with two hot options: pleather or coated glider, a shiny satin, to make a statement.

Yes, cute is in! Frayed denim jeans pair with an adorable fleece vest over a never-been cuter monkey tee...or try dazzling stars, darling butterflies or tender sayings on tees. Teen and preteen girls all are eager to wear these sweet, "younger look" styles.

Still popular, the club scene look is bold and vibrant. This season's theme look is python and other reptile or wild animal skins. Body conscious stretch remains a staple. Glider pants are almost iridescent in shimmering synthetic fabrications.

Guys fashions are big and baggie and it's better than ever! Dark denim is king, with lots of pockets and functionality. And utility features are endless: mesh, zippers, bungee cords, toggles and multiple pockets lead the list! Cuff the pants and pair with neon yellow or other bright fleece tops for a look that's totally cool. Logo wear continues to be in...especially those tees, sweatshirts and jerseys with attitude.

The five must-haves under $100 that fashion conscious juniors won't want to miss this fall are: python "glider" pants retail $40, sell at T.J. Maxx for $19.99 red pleather jacket $32, is $16.99, novelty screen T-shirt $20 is only $9.99 and the fleece vest and bright stretch turtleneck retail $30 are $14.99 at T.J. Maxx. Do your math and instead of spending $152 your cost is only $76.95.

By shopping off-price, there are some terrific looks for youths this season, great practical fashions with just the right touch of flair. And busy parents love the simplicity of one-stop shopping stores like T.J. Maxx for all their children's fashion needs.

Top Looks For Youths

For Her: Girls want to mimic "big gal fashions" with age-appropriate renditions of today's hottest animal prints. Look for animal print detailing on pants, dresses and sets. It's found in all over print, trim and even pocket inserts. Best yet, animal prints are not only black and brown...look for whimsical touches in bright red, fuschia and even turquoise. Fabrics are also especially creative this season featuring pleather, patent leather, moleskin, fleece and satiny glider.

Don't forget the jeans. Dark denim is embellished with frayed bottoms, patch appliques and suede detailing. Denim jackets are a perennial favorite and are teamed over dresses for a modern twist.

For Him: Big and baggy, (but not too baggy, please) is the name of the game! Pants are multifunctional with multiple pockets featuring velcro, snap or button closures. New on the scene: toggles. They are everywhere and make pants cooler than ever. Dark denim paired with fleece anything is extremely popular. Logo polos, sweatshirts and football shirts continue to remain a wardrobe staple for youth. How to wear these comfy looks? Layers, layers and more layers! Layering keeps guys warm outdoors, comfortable indoors for an all around "cool" look anywhere.

The Best New Back-to-School Looks Under $100 Per Child

For Girls: There are animal print jeans and top set regular retail price $34, T.J. Maxx price, $16.99. Novelty jersey retails for $20, T.J. Maxx, $9.99. The popular denim jacket retails for $34 is sold at T.J.'s for $16.99, the floral embellished dark denim jeans retails for $30, at T.J.'s sells for $14.99 and the A-line dress retailing at $30 is $14.99.

For Boys: The extreme utility pants retail at $30, are $14.99, the jersey and denim baggy jeans retail $40 each are $19.99, the comfy fleece jacket $34, sells for $16.99 and the chunk sweatshirt $26 is $12.99.

T.J. Maxx is an off-price retailer that sells brand name, designer merchandise for the entire family and home at up to 60% less than department and specialty store regular prices, every day. You can visit T.J. Maxx on the web at tjmaxx.com or call 1-800-2TJ-MAXX for the nearest store.

ALFONSO OSSORIO: "THE CREEKS" AT OSSORIO FOUNDATION

The opening of art exhibits by Willem de Kooning, Ibram Lassaw and Alfonso Ossorio at various venues this week recalls the adage, "What Goes Around Comes Around." Thus, early influences continue to impact on these significant artists, a perfect example being the current show at Southampton's Ossorio Foundation.

Called "The Creeks: Before, During and After," the presentation features a huge photographic collection taken at Ossorio's residence, The Creeks, highlighting its trees and gardens. Juxtaposed with these pictures are early watercolors also by Ossorio (circa 1932-34), suggesting a penchant for certain shapes / colors which appear in The Creeks' Conifer Arboretum and Sculpture Park several years later. Curator Mike Solomon, therefore, has linked landscape design and the visual arts as he has also connected Ossorio's past and present endeavors.

The show also serves another dual function. A well-known film theorist, Sigfried Kracauer, first identified cinema's ability to both "record and reveal": the same purposes may be applied to this exhibit. While the photographs (and an accompanying video) are straightforward in documenting the artist's unique conifer collection, watercolors reveal fantasy landscapes that decades later became real. For example, the art pieces contain many elongated tower forms, similar to the conifers in the arboretum as well as tower/torpedo objects in the sculpture park.

Other watercolors reveal plants which unfold their pods and release seeds, pre-dating photographs that record similar vegetation at The Creeks. Moreover, placement of trees in Ossorio's art work reflects his arrangement of conifers in his arboretum: juxtapositions that employ diverse aesthetic elements.

This diversity seems essential to Ossorio's work in general. It's a diversity that becomes extreme, disparate and surrealistic in his sculpture and mixed media pieces. Consider the artist's signature pieces (some of which are usually on view at The Ossorio Foundation): the combination of varied textures, materials and shapes, like jewels, mirrors, animal horns/ skeletons, organic/ man-made objects.

While Ossorio gave us many important surrealistic art works, he also left us the rarest collection of conifers in the Western Hemisphere at The Creeks, perhaps proving that some art can exist forever.

Alfonso Ossorio: "The Creeks: Before, During and After" will be at the Ossorio Foundation (164 Mariner Drive, Southampton) until September 2. Call 287-2020 for hours.

CRITIC'S CHOICE: Millennium Gallery Exhibit with Pam Focarino, Anna Falco-Lane and Mike Zissor until Aug. 29.

Watercolor by Ossorio

HONORING THE ARTIST: WALTER BERNARD

While a visitor is immediately struck by Walter Bernard's warm and down-to-earth manner, one can't help but notice that his physical surroundings convey a "personality" as well. Unlike Mr. Bernard's interior demeanor, however, his exterior setting connotes contradiction.

Contradiction is a positive aspect in Mr. Bernard's case. His work place, which includes an entire building alongside his home, is not an ordinary structure, looking and feeling like a gracious guest house. On the second floor stands Mr. Bernard's computer, a most necessary tool for his graphic art work. Even so, technology meets art in the paintings arranged on the mantle piece. They belong to Mr. Bernard, resulting from studio meetings with a group of artists who have gotten together weekly for the last twenty-five years.

These figurative pieces are a far cry from Mr. Bernard's illustration for "The Artists and Writers Baseball Game" that's featured on the cover of Dan's Papers. They are both personalized and personal (and even somewhat impressionistic) unlike the stylistic high concept evoked by Mr. Bernard's considerable expertise as a graphic artist.

Mr. Bernard's bookshelf holds other examples of diverse interests at work, although the topics often deal with some design elements: The History of Architecture, Houses of the Hamptons, and The Kitchen Book.

Regardless of the varied and oppositional tools/aesthetics attracting Mr. Bernard, there's no doubt that design is his primary professional pursuit. From his days with Esquire magazine, New York magazine (where he was its first art director), and Time through the mid-1970s, Mr. Bernard has earned a fine reputation (with his partner Milton Glaser) for innovative design.

Mr. Bernard admits that the computer age offers many challenges when it comes to design, but they are challenges he gladly accepts. While basic magazine design principles remain the same ("a good idea, a good subject, and something that people want," he says), Web sites are providing new tenets.

Walter Bernard

"On one web site, readers protested when the design was changed," Mr. Bernard explains as an example. "The pattern that had been established had instructed readers. They didn't want the change. On the other hand, new people to the web site would have probably liked the redesign. When considering what to change, the idea of putting more or less print on the page is important. Also the question of how long people can read hasn't been decided."

Mr. Bernard has also accepted challenges that come with designing film. The opening animated sequences for Nora Ephron's Sleepless in Seattle and You've Got Mail (done with partners Milton Glaser and Mirko Ilic) are obviously special to Mr. Bernard as he explains with glee their use of models, photographs and computers. It's also obvious that a lot of thought went into these sequences, ones which involved art, craft and a good idea.

And what will Mr. Bernard be doing ten years from now? Designing, of course. "Perhaps smaller, independent films," he says. "The idea that drives graphic design won't be as difficult, however. You won't have to have a skill; it will be easier with technology."

Mr. Bernard pauses for a minute. "Art is work," he concludes.

There's that contradiction again.

There is top-drawer theater, cabaret (Bobby Short, Linda Eder), music (Bridgehampton Chamber Music Festival) and speakers (Cong. Mike Forbes) here this week, but this is also professional sports week. Besides the Saturday Mercedes Benz Polo Challenge match at the Bridgehampton Polo Club at 4 p.m. (raindate Sunday, 2 p.m.; open admission $10), we have the Artists vs. Writers softball game on Saturday and the Paul Annacone Tennis Classic which includes an NBA pro-am basketball match on Monday—all in East Hampton. The first Hamptons Comedy Festival is this weekend and Waldbaum's Balloon & Music Festival in Brookhaven brings in Mary Wilson and the Supremes, Chubby Checker and The Beach Boys."

And what would a Hamptons weekend be without benefits: "Ellen's Run" is three days of parties, auctions, and sports events to raise funds for the South Fork Breast Health Coalition: "Bow Wow Luau" at Ellen and Chuck Scarborough's is for the Animal Rescue Fund of the Hamptons (ARF); Robert Wilson's Watermill Center holds its annual dinner dance on Saturday night; and the Hamptons Film Festival has a special preview of Ken Burns' new film Jazz plus a buffet dinner in Sag Harbor on Saturday evening.

THEATER

Sag Harbor's Bay Street Theatre has a busy week. The final summer production, the classic Moss Hart/George S. Kaufman comedy You Can't Take It With You, opens. Next Tuesday, August 22, performance, there is a "talk back" between the audience and cast. This coming Monday, August 21, accomplished American musical theater artists Betty Comden, Adolph Green, Cy Coleman and Sheldon Harnick will talk with moderator Peter Stone about where musical theater is heading in the 21st century. The play and the panel discussion begin at 8 p.m. For tickets, call the box office at (631) 725-9500.

The Hamptons Shakespeare Festival's production of the comedy Much Ado About Nothing continues at Theodore Roosevelt County Park in Montauk. The show plays Wednesday through Sunday, 7:30 p.m. outdoors. Come early and bring a picnic dinner plus sweaters. A voluntary contribution of $10 per person is suggested and the show is suitable for children.

East Hampton's Guild Hall brings in the Off Broadway Abingdon Theater Company on Monday for a staged reading of The Appearance of Impropriety (7 p.m. curtain; tickets $12-$15 at the door).

MUSIC

There are two leading cabaret performers here this weekend. Bobby Short will give two performances at the Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center on Saturday evening (tickets, 631-288-1500) and Linda Eder, an original star of Broadway's Jekyll & Hyde, will be at East Hampton's Guild Hall (tickets 631-324-4050) with her band for two shows on Saturday.

The Bridgehampton Chamber Music Festival, having an outstanding season, comes to a close this weekend with three concerts. On Saturday at 8 p.m., the "Crazy Quilt" program mixes baroque, Mendelssohn and contemporary music. The final Sunday program, at 6:30 p.m., features music from Austria, Germany and Eastern European composers (Borodin, Dvorak, etc.). All concerts are at the Bridgehampton Presbyterian Church (now air conditioned!). Tickets are $25 adults, $20 seniors, $10 children; call the Festival office at (631) 537-6368.

The WPBX-FM jazz series continues at Bridgehampton's Wild Rose on Sunday night with danceable music from Topaz, a six-man ensemble (shows at 7:45 and 10 p.m., $25). On Tuesday evening, the Atlantic Philharmonic Orchestra from Great Neck will be at Guild Hall at 7:30 p.m., and a reception follows at Duck Walk Vineyards, Water Mill; call (516) 829-7961 for tickets.

Mellow music favorites at the clubs and restaurants: Bridgehampton—rock & roll with the Lone Sharks on Thursday at the Wild Rose; Dennis Raffelock Trio plays soft jazz and pop standards on Friday at Bridges, 7 to 10 p.m., followed by a dance party; Kipling's Trio plays from the pop standards/jazz canon Friday at Kipling's; Montauk—Stefanie Cardinali, Paul Gene and Rick Salter perform pop classics at Oyster Pond on Tues. and Fri. and Montauk Yacht Club on Wed. and Sat.; Sag Harbor—Hunky Page on piano weekends at the American Hotel; East Hampton—Diana Rogers at the Maidstone Arms piano Sunday; Amagansett—at the Stephen Talkhouse this week are cajun rock & blues with Tab Benoit on Thurs., funk bassist George Porter on Fri., a benefit Rick Danko Memorial concert on Sat., Buckwheat Zydeco on Sun., and Jimmy Cliff next Wed. (call 631-267-2117 for tickets).

SPECIAL SPORTS EVENTS

The Grandfather of all Hamptons sports event, the Artists & Writers softball game, is this Saturday afternoon at Herrick Field behind Main St. in East Hampton. Some of the "jocks" expected to play are Alec Baldwin, Roy Scheider, Mr. G, Ed Burns, Bill Beutel and Regis's Gelman. Field practice usually starts about 1 p.m. and the game gets underway about 3 p.m. Admission is only $8 and all proceeds go to local organizations—The Retreat, East Hampton Day Care Center and East End Hospice.

Ellen's Run, a series of events to benefit the South Fork Breast Health Coalition, is this weekend. On Friday starting at 7 p.m., there is an informal supper & dance party at the Racquet Club of East Hampton where "Calcutta" style pro-am teams will be set up for the next day's tennis tournament. On Saturday, the big cocktail

AND AT A THEATRE NEAR YOU

Guy de Fraumeni's HOLLYWOOD in The Hamptons

ARRIVEDERCI! COMO, ITALIA
HELLO! COMATOSE U.S.A. MOVIE

Sad leaving the Felliniesque Milano airport but, a Saint was checking us in at Delta and an attractive young lady was busy cleaning around me in the Men's Room (both so Italian). I tipped her with a bunch of five and ten thousand lire notes I was jettisoning. She thanked me and returned to her urinals. Home, if naturally, was not so Italian. Just nice and hectic in the Summer HampTOONS... very lively! Then, WHOH! I saw Robert Zemeckis' "tribute" to Alfred Hitchcock, What Lies Beneath, and was slowly sucked into a near coma. Awakened, from time to time, by the standard Ghost Story noises: like things that go BUMP in the night, the good old barking dog, the hinges that need a healthy shot of WD-40 and, of course, the carping of a male director's favorite "movie wife". She is thin and wiry (wired to a 12,000 volt transformer), therefore, chronically edgy. She is husband badgering (just won't let him get his work done), and greedily self-sacrificing, etc. Manly directors' men usually attribute these to P.M.S. (Perpetual Man Strangling) or P.E. (Penis Envy). In this movie, her only child has gone off to college plus all of the above and, on the top of that, she has obviously seen every thrilling Hitchcock suspense movie. SO, when her picture perfect husband goes away from their picture perfect house to complete important work, she is spooked by the noisy couple next door and their screams of orgasm or terror (Rear Window, binoculars and all), a closed shower curtain (PSYCHO, running water and all). Well, simply think of all the Hitchcock "McGuffins" and add slices of Ghost, Fatal Attraction and the scores of other Hitch-inspired movies as additional padding and drag it out for hours... that's

What Lies Beneath

What Lies Beneath. That is not to say that there is no entertainment value or that it doesn't have a few good scares. A few good men will tell you that Michelle Pfeiffer is terrific as the "movie housewife"... bitch and moan... bitch and moan but not like Hitchcock's cool and glossy Grace Kelly or Kim Novak. She ain't even really blonde! Women may identify more with the later-in-the-movie heroine. (I am not at liberty to discuss that. Not even a hint.)

The multitudinous borrowed plot plays (would you believe a bit of TITANIC?) simply put off (interminably) the inevitable. Then at the end, there are at least five or six endings. If you haven't been clobbered too many times by the now mandatory multiple ending, there may be more than one surprise in store for you (among them another Psycho shocker).

EVEN HITCHCOCK'S BONES ARE FAT

Adding a lot of dimension and quality to the melange are Michelle Pfeiffer and Harrison Ford. However, the venerable old Ford is kept garaged at his office lab for about two thirds of the movie so that Michelle can be Home Alone! The better to be spooked!! They're a loving couple, living in Bliss... Vermont. It's so far-away-peaceful you can guess that it is near Hysteria. Their good daughter goes off to school... never to be heard from again. Immediately their new neighbors have noisy fights and intercourse. It's fun but, Harrison has to go off to his important research. The fights next door become more violent. Then one rainy night... is that Raymond Burr carrying out a long heavy thing in plastic? What? What was that noise? I, thought I closed that door. Then, there's a constant visitor to her bathroom. It's not the Tidy Bowl man! Messages appear on the steamy mirror. On and On... more Red Herrings, Sardonic Sardines, and slimy Smelly Smelts (they are, on a lake). Let's see. There's Witchcraft, craft jewelry, past remembrances, past forgetfulness, a fetish, apparitions of... WHO? And WHY? Have you dozed off yet?

BENEATH ALL THE LIES

I ponder, now, as I wander off again, in the opposite direction, flying to Victoria, British Columbia... how, and why American directors continue to be smart-alecky enough as to pick on the bones of the British suspense purveyor. Yes, Hitchcock smoothly fused America into his work, but, there was always that typically English reserve that made his movies so spooky. The less an audience sees, the more it conjures up in its mind What Lies Beneath is just too much.

You'll hear from me while I'm in British Columbia, even if it's only a Technicolor postcard. Meantime... as Zemeckis moves on to another major project and Mr. Ford is dusting off the old Indiana Jones's hat for Spielberg and Lucas, you and I have to consider movies as commerce. Ford's sticker price has to be pretty high, for even this movie, and there's no doubt the producers had to pay Pfeiffer a good sum too. How much did you pay for that last movie ticket?

HOW TO CUT CLASS AND OTHER CYBER LESSONS

As the summer winds down, college freshmen are looking forward to a year that they will never forget (or remember). As last goodbyes are said, the focus turns from high school memories to what the future holds. What's next??? Where are you going to find extra-long bed sheets? What about textbooks, where will you buy those? Do you really need to go to class? Not enrolled in college yet? Below is a listing of websites that might soothe your nerves and help guide you in the right direction for ALL of your college needs.

BEFORE YOUR ARRIVAL:

www.dorm101.com—Bedding! Extra-long mattresses are common in university housing. The reasoning may be comfort for seven foot coeds, but finding the right size sheets for these mattresses can cause headaches. Don't go trying to fit regular size sheets on these mattresses; no matter how hard you pull, stretch, or tuck, they won't fit! Check out this website for extra long sheets as well as bedding ensemble care packages.

www.bedbathandbeyond.com—Now things are even easier than in the past, you can order online and have it delivered to your dormstep! From sandwich makers to towels to yaffa blocks, there isn't much that this site doesn't offer. They even have packing checklists and survival guides.

GETTING SETTLED:

www.textbookhound.com—One of the largest textbook search engines on the Internet, this site offers an easy alternative to hitting the crowded bookstore at school. textbookhound.com searches over 30 online bookstores for the books and school supplies you need at the best prices. In addition, they can search multiple books at one time and give you all the information you need including shipping and tax info.

www.makingcollegecount.com—Now that you have some spare time, take a moment to check out this website. Offering friendly advice and helpful hints, this site is a guide to making the best of your years in college. From tips on paying for your education to stories of embarrassing moments in the cafeteria, all aspects of college are covered.

DOWN THE STRETCH:

www.cutclass.com my pick for site of the week. This is one of the most amusing college sites I have come across. Purely for entertainment purposes, this colorful site offers all sorts of distractions including Internet-based voice chat, TV and movie listings, spring break advice and college recipes. In no time you will be convinced by the fresh slogan, "because you know enough already" and won't think twice about skipping class to surf this site!

www.collegeclub.com—Offering a specialized search engine, email, and CC instant messaging, this is the site that meets all of your college socializing needs. With scheduled chats about the Simpsons and nationwide classified listings, you are linked to college kids around the country. The site is updated daily with a focus on a new member, a poll question, and a topic posted for discussion. Check this site out.

OTHER PLANS?

www.learn4you.com—Not ready for college, but still interested in a learning experience? Check out Learning Through Experience's site for information and advice on alternative learning experiences. "Turning time-off into time-on" is their logo and all of their consulting services can be done entirely through online chatting and emailing. This placement company can arrange all sorts of experiences from teaching at a Navaho Indian reservation to studying the ecosystems in Hawaii. Check out this site and realize quickly that not all learning is done in the classroom.

party chaired by Christie Brinkley goes on from 6 to 8:30 p.m. at Nova's Ark off Scuttlehole Rd., Bridgehampton. A silent auction of unusual gifts and a live auction of big-ticket items (vacations, etc.) will go on at the party. (Call 631-329-0403 for tickets). The "Ellen's Run" race is Sunday at 9 a.m., rain or shine, East Hampton High School (registration Sat. from 9 a.m.).

The second Paul Annacone Tennis Classic has grown exponentially. It now benefits East Hampton Day Care, Kendall Madison Scholarship Fund, Meals on Wheels and the Robert F. Kennedy Memorial. Ethel Kennedy is expected to attend as are Lindsay Davenport, Todd Martin and (perhaps) Annacone's "pupil" Pete Sampras. This is a two-day event starting with a "Meet 'n' Greet" party and auction at The Waterside in Sag Harbor on Sunday evening. Then Chris Mullin, Antonio Davis and other NBA basketball pros play three-on-three Monday morning at East Hampton Indoor Tennis, followed by lunch while watching the invitational pro-am tennis matches at mid-day, a tennis clinic at mid-afternoon, the Davenport/Martin exhibition match and the closing informal dinner dance and auction hosted by Kim Basinger and Alec Baldwin on Sunday evening—all at East Hampton Indoor Tennis. For ticket information, call (631) 324-1325.

SPEAKERS

Bridgehampton library's "Fridays at Five" speaker is Hamptons' artist and garden expert Robert Dash. He will chat outdoors in the library's backyard ($15 admission includes refreshments; rainsite, Bridgehampton School). Upstairs at Book Hampton, East Hampton, Richard Golub will read from his novel The Big Cut on Friday (7 p.m.) and novelist Amy Bloom will read from her new short-story collection A Blind Man Can See How Much I Love You on Saturday, 5:30 p.m. Canio's Books in Sag Harbor has poets Susan Baran and Rosanne Wasserman reading from their work at 6 p.m. on Friday, and Sandy McIntosh and Harvey Shapiro will read on Saturday at 6 p.m. The East Hampton Historical Society's Poetry Marathon continues at the Amagansett Marine Museum on Sunday, 4 p.m., with poets Helen Ruth Freeman, Sasha Freudenberg and Sequoyah Hunter-Cuyjet reading (refreshments follow the program).

Local congressman Michael Forbes will speak to the World Affairs Council at Duke Hall, Southampton College on Saturday at 5 p.m. His talk is open to all ($5 for guests). Best-selling nonfiction author Dava Sobel (Longitude, Galileo's Daughter) will speak at East Hampton's Guild Hall on Sunday at 2 p.m. (no admission charge). On Sunday at 5 p.m., The East Hampton Star art critic Rose Slivka will moderate a round-table discussion on "Art Criticism: Whose Truth?" with art critic Grace Glueck (The New York Times), curator Klaus Kertess, author David Lehman, art critic Peter Schjeldahl (The New Yorker), painter Connie Fox and ceramicist Diane Mayo. The program is at LongHouse Reserve, 133 Hands Creek Rd., East Hampton ($10 members, $20 guests).

FILMS

Award-winning documentary filmmaker Ken Burns' latest film about the great jazz musicians, Jazz, will have a special preview screening at the Sag Harbor movie theater on Saturday, courtesy of General Motors and New York magazine. A buffet dinner follows at Sugar Reef restaurant. The Rev. Calvin Butts III, Wynton Marsalis and Stuart Match Suna are expected. This is a benefit for the Harlem Abyssinian Baptist Church and the Hamptons Film Festival. For available tickets ($50), call (212) 981-5292.

Southampton's Parrish Art Museum series "Monday Night at the Movies" concludes this Monday with Wem Wenders' acclaimed The Buena Vista Social Club, a documentary of guitarist Ry Cooder's trip to Cuba seeking out the older musicians who made Cuban music popular (7:30 p.m., free to Museum members, $5 for guests). The Film Society of Lincoln Center's international film series at Guild Hall on Thursday has The Apple, an Iranian feature directed by Samira Makhmalbaf (7:30 p.m., $10-$12).

BENEFITS AND SPECIAL EVENTS

Waldbaum's Balloon and Music Festival is Friday afternoon through Sunday evening at Brookhaven-Calabro Airport. Besides hot-air ballooning there will be a fire-jump show, trapeze acrobatics and a magic show. Friday evening, an original Supreme, Mary Wilson, will sing at 8 p.m. followed by Chubby Checker at 9 p.m. On Saturday evening, The Beach Boys will give a concert followed by Grucci fireworks. On Sunday afternoon, there's rap, rock and jazz from BB Mak, Take Five, Amber and Bosson beginning at 2 p.m. Tickets are for sale at Waldbaum stores or at the gate.

The Animal Rescue Fund (ARF) is the beneficiary of "Bow Wow Luau," a Hawaiian-themed dinner dance on the grounds of Ellen and Chuck Scarborough's Southampton home on Saturday night. Chef Sam Choy is coming from Hawaii to supervise the cuisine. For tickets, call (631) 329-5480.

Robert Wilson's Watermill Center, a working laboratory for all the fine and performing arts, holds its annual open house and dinner dance with entertainment on Saturday evening starting at 6:30 p.m. For tickets, call (631) 726-4628.

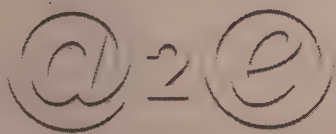

The first annual Hamptons Comedy Festival is this Thursday through Saturday. There are comedians at Tavern (Southampton), Wild Rose Café (Bridgehampton) and Stephen Talkhouse (Amagansett) on Thursday through Saturday. In addition, there's a shows Friday afternoon through evening at the Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center and East Hampton's Guild Hall. For a schedule of performers, VIP passes to all shows or individual tickets, go to the website hamptonscomedyfestival.com or call (212) 396-2015.

silvia lehrer's cooking column

Farmers markets and produce stores are in their season of glory - that blessed time between the end of June and mid-October when there isn't enough time to cook everything you want to and you have to fight temptation to buy more than you'll be able to cook and eat.

One way to beat the urge is to call over a few friends for a shared meal. Or better yet, suggest that everyone bring a dish to a picnic while enjoying a concert or outdoor theatre under the stars. This brings to mind a recent visit to my sister at her vacation home in Lakeville, CT. While there we enjoyed the incomparable Seiji Ozawa and the elegance of Van Cliburn at an all Tchaikowsky program at Tanglewood, along with a couple of their friends.

Lugging chairs and blankets and baskets of food we hurried to lay claim to our grassy patch. We uncorked a bottle of crisp white wine and uncovered containers of Vidalia onion salsa to soak into toasty slices of bruschetta. Marinated eggplant slices teamed up with parslied lemon chicken, a tossed green salad and a container mix of cut up melons. Lucky for us it was one of those (rare for this summer) perfect evenings - a clear night with cool breezes following a warm, sunny day.

It was the perfect picnic and everything, at least at our site, was homemade.

VIDALIA ONION SALSA

A sweet onion salsa to spread on bruschetta, the garlicky, Italian toast.

Yield: 11/2 cups

- 1 large ripe tomato, peeled, seeded and chopped
- 1 large Vidalia onion, chopped
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1/4-1/3 cup fresh lemon juice
- 1/4 cup chopped flat leaf Italian parsley
- 2-3 tablespoons snipped chives
- 1 tablespoon extra-virgin olive oil
- Coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground pepper to taste

1. Plunge tomato in boiling water for 30-40 seconds. Remove peel with the tip of a knife, cut in half crosswise and squeeze out seeds. Shred or chop coarsely.

2. Place tomato in a bowl with remaining ingredients and stir to mix. Allow to sit for 2-3 hours to blend flavors. Serve at room temperature.

CHICKEN PAILLARD WITH LEMON, PARSLEY AND CHIVES

This quickly cooked chicken dish can be served hot or at room temperature.

Serves 4 - 6

- 4 whole boneless, skinless chicken breasts, halved
- 4-5 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
- 4 tablespoons finely chopped flat-leaf Italian parsley
- 2 tablespoons snipped chives
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 tablespoon unsalted butter
- Coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
- 1 lemon, thinly sliced for garnish (optional)

1. Remove excess fat from chicken breasts. Wash and pat dry with paper towels. Put the pieces, one at a time, between two squares of wax paper and pound to about 3/8 inch thick.

2. Heat oil and melt butter in a sturdy non-stick skillet over medium-high heat. When butter is melted, put in one or two pailards at a time and saute quickly, about 1 1/2 - 2 minutes on each side, until evenly browned. Reduce heat to medium. Transfer to a side dish one layer deep as they are done and saute remaining pieces. Season pailards with salt and pepper.

3. Add lemon juice to the skillet, and with a wooden spoon or spatula deglaze the drippings by scraping up the bits in the bottom of the pan. Bring to a boil, add the parsley and stir to mix. Adjust heat to a simmer.

4. Return pailards to the skillet and turn in the juices to coat. Serve warm or at room temperature. Garnish with lemon slices, if desired.

COUNTRY-STYLE ROASTED EGGPLANT

An earthy do-ahead dish that is deliciously seasoned with garlic and fresh herbs.

4-6 servings

- 2 small eggplants, sliced crosswise, about 1-inch thick
- Coarse (kosher) salt
- 1/3-1/2 cup extra-virgin olive oil
- 2-3 cloves garlic, minced
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped flat leaf, Italian parsley
- 2 tablespoons snipped chives
- 8-10 basil leaves, rolled and cut into "ribbons"
- Freshly ground pepper

1. Layer eggplant slices in a colander and sprinkle each layer with coarse salt. Cover with paper towel and place a weight on top. Let stand for 30 minutes or so to drain bitter juices. Rinse eggplant slices and pat dry with paper towels.

Preheat oven to 375 degrees.

2. Place eggplant, one layer deep on a cookie sheet and brush lightly with olive oil on both sides. Bake about 10-12 minutes on each side until lightly golden, crisp and tender within.

3. Meanwhile, place garlic, herbs, salt and pepper to taste in a mixing bowl and stir to mix. Add enough olive oil to coat the herb mixture and stir well.

4. Spoon some of the herb mixture on each slice of eggplant to coat evenly. Let stand at least 4 hours before serving. Serve at room temperature.

Dining IN THE HAMPTONS

NEW CHEF AT GURNEY'S INN The Sea Grille at Gurney's (668-2345) has announced the hiring of a new chef, Joseph Ciminera. Mr. Ciminera, a native New Yorker, is a graduate of the French Culinary Institute of America in NYC. His education included a six-month internship at the five-diamond Albergo Venuzio Hotel in Milan, Italy under master chef Vincenzo Provino. Ciminera honed his skills in various New York kitchens including Le Cirque, Le Petite Bijou, Carmine's, Abbracciamento Restaurant and Villa Doria. Ciminera's goal at Gurney's is to provide an extraordinary and innovative dining experience by offering unusual, new creations using the finest quality ingredients.

Dining IN THE HAMPTONS

"Head East and turn Right at Johnny's Tackle," said a friendly voice over the telephone. Nick's Restaurant couldn't be easier to find. It sits atop his outdoor "Boat-bar," (an actual boat cut in half) and proudly overlooks the ocean. The atmosphere at Nick's is tranquil, and the food and service is first rate. Nick is a gracious host, and can be easily recognized by his big smile and brightly colored Hawaiian shirt. Claire Dowling, Nick's partner, also oversees the restaurant and is very charming.

I was immediately seated and waited upon at the restaurant. I was visually taken by the dining area. It is lit by natural light, and can be compared to a greenhouse house, because all the paneling is translucent. I felt refreshed and relaxed, as a wonderful breeze came through the window near where I was seated. The deck area adjacent to the restaurant is also charming and romantic, allowing anyone to enjoy a sunset or just to watch the waves. As I was waiting, I was given an "Amuse" plate. It is meant to be a fun pre-appetizer. It was a warmed pita with cucumber yogurt dip in a small dish.

As I awaited my meal, Nick came over to my table and joined me. He is a very interesting person with a unique background. Before opening the restaurant, Nick worked as a successful tax lawyer and publisher for twenty years. Claire also found success, working in the garment industry for some of the top name brands. Together, they opened the restaurant three years ago - and couldn't be happier. You could say that the restaurant is a conglomeration of both of their unique personalities. Nick has spent time in Louisiana, and the South. This "Southern Exposure" has greatly influenced the menu at Nick's. Here are some of the appetizers that I tried: Firecracker chicken rolls, fried calamari tempura style, Nick's Bourbon Street BBQ shrimp, clams casino New Orleans style, and Cedarwood grilled portobello mushrooms.

24 Montauk Highway, Hampton Bays
723-2626

Nick was very proud and confident of his sous chef Misha Levin. Misha studied under the famous Chef Emeril "Bam, Kick it up a notch" Lagasse. That is when we got on the topic of spicy food. Nick offered me some clam chowder, and I gave it a try. This was the point of no return for me however. When I was eight years old, my mom took me to Mystic Seaport. There, I discovered my undying love for clam chowder. I ate it for every meal, lunch, dinner, and oh yes...breakfast. Nick's award winning clam chowder awoke my love for the stuff. "It is a secret recipe," Nick told me. Nick and his chef came up with the recipe together - and let me tell you it is delicious.

*Note to reader: The Clam Chowder Cook-Off is held on Columbus Day weekend.

My entree was grilled filet mignon, served with shitaki mushrooms and cabernet sauce on a potato pancake with warm spinach. This was the nicest steak I've had on the East End. I could have cut it with my fork, and the sauce and mushrooms were delicious. After the steak, I went to finish off the rest of my soup. I was so concentrated on my soup that I did not realize that desert was on its way. The next thing I saw was the chef standing over me with one of Nick's homemade desserts, strawberry shortcake...my Achilles heel.

Nick's restaurant is a great place that is why I am writing about it. It is a place to mark on your road map and check out. Everything on the menu is delicious, so be adventurous and try something new! The drive is fun too, and makes a great day trip for couples or families. Also, there is a children's menu; and Nick's does customized catering. The wine menu is short and to the point. It supports a good selection of everything popular, and proudly displays the local wines.

Nick's restaurant is a contender, and will no doubt be one of those restaurants that will be around for a long time to come. I can honestly say that the food and atmosphere there is well above par. Nick's unique taste, and passion for food, is embodied in his restaurant. Nick's flair for the south, combined with New England favorites, equals an A+ on this review.

*Drivers Notes: Start from Sag Harbor and take Route 114 East, then take 27 East all the way to Montauk. When you get to Montauk, go through town and...Head east and turn right at Johnny's Tackle." It is easy to recognize, outside of Nick's is the "boat-bar." Nick's also has live entertainment seven days a week, and has theme nights: Game Show Mania, and Classic Disco Night.

About me: I have worked in restaurants throughout my life. Initially, I thought it was a good way to earn an honest buck. I started off as a ceramic technician; then I moved up into the world of prep-cooking; then worked as dessert chef; and finally worked as a cook. In the view of this writer, there is nothing more pleasing and harmonious than the symphony of conversation over silverware on dinner plates.

Dining IN THE HAMPTONS

We felt like we had gone to an authentic French bistro last night when we discovered Bistro 26 in Hampton Bays. The quaint décor was just as though we were in the French countryside. Jennifer and I were very impressed with the ambiance and the interesting decorating touches. We found out later that the designs were prepared by our very friendly, host Denis Doges. He began his introduction by letting us know that there was a lot for us to discover here at Bistro 26, so my friend and I just sat back and marveled at all the eclectic items that scattered the room like personal collections of old photographs, aged leather luggage, antique china plates and old cameras. The background music of Billy Holiday put us in the mood for a perfectly chilled martini and it was divine.

As we waited for our meal to begin it was clear that the room would be full in no time, as Denis told us it would be. Our first dish arrived not a moment too soon, it was an endive and roquefort salad with toasted walnuts, apples and sherry wine vinaigrette. The flavors were very light but full of taste, accompanied by a basket of warm sourdough rolls. Although the next appetizer was not a French classic, it was seared rare Ahi tuna done perfectly and garnished with a kimichee salad and a wasabi cream sauce. An excellent choice if you like this kind of dish. The tuna was especially fresh and the quality was perfect. We then were served a wonderful pan seared foie gras with sautéed apples and truffle oil and we knew we were back in the French quarters.

Bistro 26
24 Montauk Highway, Hampton Bays
723-2626

There was a wonderful Australian 1999 Chardonnay that accompanied our meal, Alice White, very cold and crisp, and a great complement to all that had arrived.

The room took on a wonderful mood when the pianist Larry Pearlman, who plays by memory only began to play. His choice of music was splendid including pieces from the 20's through the present as well as Broadway classics. Sophisticated music, sophisticated food – we could not believe we were still in the Hamptons. We were then served our main courses, Jennifer who loves steak said; "It was one of the finest she had in a long time and as good as any four star restaurant in New York City." I enjoyed the grilled Atlantic salmon, served with a barbeque sauce accompanied by steamed vegetables and rice.

So who is behind all of these delicious meals? His name is Chef George Torres and his sous chef is Michael Downs. They have been together in the kitchen for the past two years and put serious thought into their creations. With a weekly special menu, in addition to their regular menu, there is sure to be something for everyone. Chef George worked in Manhattan's Quatorce Restaurant on West 14th Street, as well as a brasserie restaurant in San Francisco. George has been in the kitchen all his life and he knows the proper way to serve his customers, creating his masterpieces fresh daily and uses the finest ingredients. "I like to make what they enjoy eating. My customers are very well traveled and have high standards for their meals. I aim to please!" Both Jennifer and I could not agree more, this meal was fabulous!

We both felt there was no way we were going to miss the desserts which consisted of warm chocolate soufflé that was heavenly le creme caramel, so light and fluffy you hardly knew that you had eaten it and a warm apple tartan with French vanilla ice cream. We felt satisfied and relaxed by the piano playing gently in the background. We left our table after eating, and sat at the bar enjoying the entertainment. What a nice addition to the neighborhood. Bistro 26 is open year round, from 5 p.m., closed on Tuesdays. They offer a $25 prix fixe menu on Fridays and Saturdays from 5-6:30 p.m. and all evening on Sunday. Reservations are a must on the weekends. The winter menu features well known favorites like cassoulette, mustard and herb crusted rack of lamb with ratatouille and cabernet jelly, sautéed calf's liver with bacon, onion, and mashed potatoes, which are just a few of Chef George's signature dishes. If you are in the mood for the fine art of country dining you have found a little piece of the French countryside right in the center of Hampton Bays. Bon Appetite, everyone!

Dining IN THE HAMPTONS

Do you have your own boat and want to go ashore for dinner? If so, you will be pleased to know that The Inn At Mill Creek has a marina where you can moor it and walk a short distance to the restaurant. But if you're a land-lubber, you can drive there and enjoy the picturesque view, especially at sun-down, as my companion and I did one Sunday evening.

After we entered the restaurant, we were greeted by Celine Regan, the hostess, who escorted us to a table overlooking the Marina. Enroute, I was pleased to see a comfortable lounge near the bar, a great place to wait for a table if the restaurant is crowded. But we were early, so that wasn't a problem. In a matter of minutes, warm olive bread and ice water were brought to us.

As Celine gave us menus, she mentioned that the restaurant is under the new management of Justin S. Levine—the Executive Chef—and his partner. For appetizers, she suggested we try several specialties, such as fried oysters in bread crumbs and prawns barbecued Mediterranean style. These seemed appealing, so we decided to try them.

I was impressed by the oysters, which I hadn't had in a long time especially the fried variety, and the spicy sauce that went with it was an excellent addition. The prawns in barbecue sauce were equally flavorful, accompanied by fresh, crusty chunks of French bread, of course, for dunking purposes.

As we were considering our entrees, much to our surprise, Mr. Levine's partner brought over a bottle of champagne, made by the monks of the Abbey Saint-Hilaire, who had been making this excellent bubbly for a hundred years before the notable Dom Perignon. He exclaimed, "It costs only $18 and is comparable to a $40 variety. No doubt about it," I said, as I sipped some, noting that the bubbles were slow rising, which to me meant a more sustained bouquet: an elegant accompaniment.

When Celine came back to take our entree orders, I mentioned my preference for fish. She suggested the salmon steak. My companion wanted beef and was told that the restaurant served a fine aged black Angus steak. We agreed, since these selections would provide the opportunity for a critical review of typical fish and meat dishes.

The servings were more than ample. The boneless salmon steak, served with wild rice, squash and tomatoes, was grilled to perfection, not losing any of its fresh flavor. And I was tempted to taste the steak, served with mashed potatoes and spinach, which my companion was devouring with gusto. Having become primarily a vegetarian, I don't eat meat, but I must confess that a taste of steak made me want to change my mind. It was one of the most delicious and tender I had ever eaten in my pre-vegetarian days.

Prices at the restaurant are reasonable. The raw bar offers clams on the half-shell and oysters for $6 to $13 each. The seafood trio of clams, oysters, shrimp and mussels is priced at $18. The chilled shrimp cocktail is $9.

Appetizers, including stuffed clams, Caesar salad, Edward Island mussels and crab cakes, range from $5 to $12.

Entrees, including fish, fowl and meat dishes, go from $18 to $24. The appetizing children's menu is a giveaway at $2 to $7.

And bear in mind that the restaurant offers a Sunset prix fixe menu for $19.95 that is served from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday. Wednesday evening is "Lobster Night", also priced at $19.95. The restaurant is handicapped accessible. After 7:30 p.m. reservations are only for ala carte, so make yours early.

Waldbaum Balloon and Music Festival Flies High This Weekend

Musical legends of today and yesterday will be the highlight of a weekend of activities which includes children's shows, magic shows, trapeze acts, a fireworks extravaganza, and of course, balloons at the Third Annual Waldbaum Balloon & Music Festival, August 18-20 from 1-10 p.m. at the Brookhaven-Calabro Airport in Shirley.

To kick off the musical segment of the Festival, Mary Wilson and The Supremes will perform at 8 p.m. Starting with their first hit in 1964 (Where Did Our Love Go), the Supremes teenage success at newly-formed Motown Records made history and continued through more than three decades during which thirty three songs reached the Top 40. They remain the only American group to have five consecutive songs reach number one on the charts. Mary, an original member of the group, will perform the group's chart-topping hits as well as those of her solo album, Mary Wilson.

Following their performance, Chubby Checker will take the stage at 9:30 p.m. In 1960, Chubby Checker took the world by storm with his outrageous dance style and such hits as The Twist. Through his twenty albums and forty singles, Mr.

Checker managed to revolutionize the style of dancing; a new style that consisted of "dancing apart to the beat of anyone's music" as opposed to the standard couples dancing of the day. Chubby Checker has held concerts for the past four decades and still continues to tour into the new millennium.

The Beach Boys will take center stage on August 19 at 8 p.m. For more than three decades, The Beach Boys, featuring Mike Love, have been riding the crest of the wave unequaled in America's history. They originated "surf music," the anthem of the early 60s, which led to the creation of many copycat groups with a similar but unequaled sound. The group has toured annually since 1961 and were presented with the Special Award of Merit at the American Music Awards in 1998. Later that same year they were inducted into the Rock & Roll Hall Of Fame.

The Summer X Jam Concert on August 20 will feature up and coming artists BBMAK, Amber and Take 5: Take 5 will give a preview of their soon-to-be released album, Against All Odds at 2 p.m. Amber, who received the Critics Choice Award in 1999, will perform at 3 p.m. BBMAK, predicted to be the next 'N Sync, is a new group taking the world by storm with their hit single Back Here, from their debut album Sooner Or Later will perform at 4 p.m.

The Music Festival is only a part of this three day event. The Trapeze Spectacular featuring Pascale Rousseau, a French Trapeze Acrobat, will suspend from one of over seventy five hot air balloons each evening at 6:30 p.m. Among the many hot air balloons featured will be a number of special shaped balloons that will fill the skies at 6:30 p.m. on Friday and twice daily at 6:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

In addition, there will be an incredible range of family activities which will include: the National Marionette Theatre, Geico Direct Yienst Magic Circus, Arthur's Wonderful Kind of Storytime, Amazing "Fire Jump" High Dive, Barnyard Attractions Petting Zone, Circuit City Hare & Hound, Winn's Thrills of the Universe, Purina Dog Chow Dog Team and the Spirit Airlines Paul Bunyan Lumberjack Show. Fireworks by Grucci Extravaganza, plus over one hundred exhibitors of unique arts and crafts and refreshments will complete this weekend of family fun.

For more information or to reserve tickets, call 914-238-2730 or visit their website at www.balloonfestival.com.

Micro-dermabrasion Turns Back the Hands of Time

What is this new holistic technology that answers today's health and beauty demands? The new method, used in Europe for years, has hit the states and is just amazing, it's called micro-dermabrasion. The micro-dermabrasion treatment uses an advanced method of abrasion to revitalize the skin and promote new cell regeneration. It is used for brown spots, melasma, crow's feet, acne, scars, sun damage, enlarged pores, lip and character lines. The micro-dermabrasion treatment erases fine lines, wrinkles and aids in the reduction of any facial scars. This treatment is virtually painless, uses no anesthesia, there is no recovery time and there are no known side effects. What more could we ask for?

What is the actual treatment you might ask? Well, micro-dermabrasion is used in place of chemical and glycolic peels by offering a series of controlled exfoliation treatments to achieve renewed complexion and glow. The power peel is a fast, effective, painless treatment leaving little or no redness to your skin. Micro-crystals gently remove dead skin cells, allowing the surface to regenerate bringing a healthy, youthful appearance to the skin. Best results can be achieved with a series of five or more treatments to effectively control and focus on the problem areas. A follow-up home care treatment of the proper cleansers, sun screen creams and toners for your skin will aid in the process of recapturing your youthful appearance.

The Style Bar, a day spa located at one Bay Street in Sag Harbor, offers micro-dermabrasion as one of the many treatments. They also offer manicures pedicures, European waxing, facials, massage, and various body treatments.

So if the micro-dermabrasion treatment sounds like it might be a treatment you are interested in looking into, please call the Style Bar day spa at 725-6730. They offer a consultation with their professionally trained licensed estheticians, Phyllis Gasparri and Christine Picciano, who has been using micro-dermabrasion for two years and have watched the "hands of time literally turn backwards" for her clients. You can benefit from a micro-dermabrasion power peel for a more youthful, healthy appearance. It works.

Child Development Center Down On The Farm

This summer, Dawn Zimmerman, founder of the Child Developmental Center of the Hamptons, is taking her special school one step further with a program aimed toward community service. The Child Developmental Center of the Hamptons is a non-profit charter school which services disabled and non-disabled children. Every Thursday, from Memorial Day through Labor Day, young students from the CDCH spend the morning at the Quail Hill Farm in Amagansett. A stewardship project of the Peconic Land Trust, Quail Hill Farm is a nonprofit organization dedicated to the preservation of farmland on Long Island.

Quail Hill farm members purchase a land share at the beginning of the year, enabling them to harvest fresh vegetables and flowers throughout the season. Quail Hill is volunteer and community supported, which is why the children of the CDCH participate in Agricultural activities. Every Thursday from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., students of the CDCH, some who have disabilities and some who don't, visit the farm. "We always enjoy working with the community," said Scott Cheskey, head farmer. The students attend in groups and each group engages in different activities, such as planting seeds. This is the first year Quail Hill is working with the three-five year olds in the CDCH school. This is their eleventh year as a farm with community supported agriculture. "We want to see how the kids can work with the land," Zimmerman said. Zimmerman hopes that her CDCH charter school, for students aged three to twenty one, set to open in East Hampton this September, will give the students appropriate training for running a farmstand at the school. Running a farmstand will increase kid's self-esteem and socialization skills. At Quail Hill, the kids engage in various land activities, including digging for worms, growing seeds, seeing chickens and enjoying a hayride. The apprentices provide different activities for the kids. They develop a series of things to do for the kids to interact with the farmland and each other. "They communicate with the community," Hawks said.

"This is great for them because some kids have the opportunity to see where fruit and vegetables actually grow," Zimmerman, who's ten-year-old son Jon is autistic, said he is the "backbone who made me do this." All her determination to bring all the special education children and regular kids of the Hamptons together without school and program segregation including two hour bus rides has paid off.

Quail Hill Volunteers are members of the community, friends and shareholders. Currently, the CDHS has their schooling at rented space in the Most Holy Trinity Church in East Hampton, "traveling two hours sometimes to the Boces school in Westhampton. They were out of site, out of mind," Zimmerman said. Her newly-established charter school will bring together regular and disabled students and with a student-run farmstand, they will graduate with work and community service exposure. "It's natural learning for them. They do extraordinary things. They get to see all the things that happen on a farm by working in groups on different tasks," Zimmerman said. Approximately forty five students are in the program. "They're great kids," said Graham Hawks, ass't farm manager for Quail Hill. "On the farm, you get to be who you are and everyone is treated equally." This program is part of their alternative mode of education; an extension of their schooling. "The kids hear about animals and farms in the classroom all the time," Zimmerman said. "And now they can see it." A new group of students visit every Thursday. Holding hands, they excitedly run around the chicken coop, enjoy a hayride and take turns on a tire swing, assisted by parents, grandparents and volunteers.

East Hampton native, Ellen Watson and her son, Ned Haweeli age six, volunteer for the farm programs. "This is a great experience for him," said Watson about Ned. "We have organic foods at home and this program is a great extension. He works with the local farmers and he loves it." The kids don't want to leave the farm. As for Zimmerman's charter school, she hopes their activities at Quail Hill as well as upcoming activities, will prepare her students for bright futures.

Speedfit – The “Next Big Thing” in Weight Loss

The sports news highlighted the results of the US track and field trials for the upcoming Summer Olympics. A photo image of Marion Jones, lean and lithe, crossing the finish line to win the 100 meter, appears on the screen. While I have never before had any interest in the Summer Olympics I suddenly felt like this was an epiphany. After years of trying every fitness trend out there, searching for that ideal body and trying to drop pounds, perhaps the “next big thing” in fitness has been around since ancient Greece.

While you might not be looking to win the Gold at the Sydney Olympics, Speedfit classes held every morning at Bridgehampton Tennis and Surf will get you looking as good as any sprinter coming around the track. This system, if you stick with it, of course, will guarantee your goal weight. Your coach, Alex Astilean, a former Decathlon champion of Romania who developed Speedfit, uses the same training techniques used for centuries in competitive track and field events, for those of us who just want to look as good as the sprinter crossing the finish line.

There are those of you who will say “But, I can’t run.” Alex will be quick to challenge you. “If you can walk, you can run,” says Alex. “The human body was designed to run, not drive a car, sit at a computer or even ride a bike. Think about it, just about every competitive sport is based on running. Guaranteed you won’t find any walking in Marion Jones’ training program.”

All newcomers to a Speedfit class are first tested on how they run. “Most people need to be re-taught how to run,” says Alex. Speedfit uses an innovative toe stance used by competitive short distance runners. “Watch a 100, 200, 400, 800, even a 5000 meter race” he continues, “the competitors all run on the ball of the foot.” With the body in this position, you move more muscle groups at a time than in other fitness routines. The more energy spent, the more calories burned. Most marathon runners use a heel striking position trying to conserve energy. You use a lot more energy with this method but you also burn a lot more fat. “If your goal is to burn calories and fat, always run toe first and land on the ball of your foot,” says Alex.

After the running test, Alex works with you to establish your starting speed. With each drill, the bar is raised and you advance to the next speed level. A competitive spirit takes over as Alex coaches each class like a track and field event. The only difference is that every person is a winner when they meet their own personal challenges. There is no pressure to be better than the person next to you. At every class, people are exercising at different speeds based on their current level of fitness, some at 4.0 mph with some as high as 10.0 mph.

After a few sessions, you will find yourself looking to raise your speed. But as the bar is constantly being raised, a Speedfit class never gets easier. According to Alex, that is exactly why you continue to get results. There are no plateaus like in most fitness routines.

Besides running. Speedfit classes include other equally challenging cardio drills. In fact, for those of you who are not the most avid of runners, there are times you will actually beg Alex to run. We all know that the trick to any effective exercise program is to get the heart rate up. Speedfit guarantees that! Your heart will be pumping and burning those calories and fat away. Speedfit™ is a most efficient method of exercising in today’s time challenged world. According to Alex, Speedfit gives you maximum results in the least amount of time. You can burn as many as 1000 calories in one session depending on your level of speed and intensity.

Think back to all those “next big” fitness fads we have all fallen victim to. You know the ones... One day we are dancing our fat away. Somehow a couple of times a week playing whirling dervish doesn’t always cut the fat. So you put away your dancing shoes and put on your boxing gloves. Or how about the circus routine where you fly through the air with the greatest of ease! How many calories do you think fright and terror burn in an hour? And how about those fire department drills? Planning to become a local fire volunteer? The list of all those “come and gone” fitness trends goes on and on... Even die hard joggers—who log hours of miles will find Speedfit will give better results in less time.

So if you are looking for a fitness routine with an excellent track record that will get you in better shape and drop pounds, try Speedfit available in both group and private sessions. You might not win a gold medal in the 2004 Olympics after Speedfit training, but Alex guarantees your body will be solid gold.

For more information about Speedfit, call Alex at 631 537-7979.

Improve Your Golf Game With A Full Swing

Consistent research has shown that 55-60% of all golf shots are less than a full swing. These include chipping, pitching and putting.

The chipping stroke usually happens from the fringe of the putting green to about ten yards out. There are three key elements to the chipping stroke that include choking down to the bottom of the grip, keeping your weight on your front side, and having the ball placed inside your back foot. The motion should be stiff wristed and pendulum like.

The pitching stroke is usually taken from beyond ten yards and up to fifty yards from the green. The two adjustments from the chip shot are moving the ball to the center of your stance and incorporating a wrist cock in the backswing. The trick is to know where your clubhead is in the backstroke. This is dependent on how long your shot is to the green. Remember, keep the pendulum affect in your mind on the follow through, and you will develop a good feel for the shot.

The final stroke is the putting stroke. The putting stroke accounts for 30-35% of the game. The pendulum motion is truly evident here. The important aspects of putting include having one's eyes over the ball at address, thumbs down the shaft, and the ball positioned somewhere between the inside of the front foot and the center of the stance. The individual's weight should be slightly on the front side and the lower body should be stable. The stroke should be shoulder and arm-orientated with little hand or wrist movement. If direction is one's problem, look for hand influences for putts being pulled and head or body movement for pushed putts. The key for distance control is the pendulum motion along with plenty of practice.

Hampton Classic Enters An Impressive 25th Year

The Hampton Classic Horse Show will celebrate its Silver Anniversary when it returns to Bridgehampton, for its 25th year, August 27th through September 3 with an impressive list of sponsors and a record $500,000 in prize money for nearly 1,500 equestrian competitors.

The Manhattan Mortgage Company's Opening Day ceremonies and "The World of the Horse" presented by Distinction Magazine, L.I. Parents and Children Magazine will take place on Sunday, August 27 at around 1:00 p.m. in the Grand Prix Ring immediately following the Leadline Classes held for riders under the age of eight. The ceremonies feature an educational parade and demonstrations of various horse breeds with an occasional donkey or mule thrown in.

The first-ever Seniors Day at the Hampton Classic Horse Show will be held on Thursday, August 31. Seniors Day will be presented in association with 50 Plus Senior News, the monthly newspaper for Long Island and New York seniors. A number of special activities will be developed just for the horse show's senior visitors that day, including health awareness programs and a special "Senior Surfing" program within the Classic's new Instinet Cafe, designed to introduce the internet to seniors in a relaxed and friendly setting.

Cablevision's Kids Day takes place on Saturday, September 2 from 9:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. at The Horse Exhibition Tent and Show Yard located behind the main grandstands. Children can gather around Alcazar the Magician to witness his sleight of hand and laugh as circus acts amuse them. In addition to just watching, kids can also learn a few tricks themselves as the National Circus Project teaches juggling, plate spinning, and stilt walking.

Showcasing the finest Olympic level show jumping athletes, the $150,000 Crown Royal Grand Prix, presented by David Yurman draws thousands of spectators on Sunday, September 3. The top thirty horses from Friday's $25,000 Prudential World Cup Grand Prix Qualifier go on to compete in Sunday's featured event the $150,000 Crown Royal Grand Prix presented by David Yurman. This year's increased purse of $150,000 makes it one of the richest grand prix events in the country.

A new addition to this year's exciting lineup of equestrian events is the $50,000 BestSelections.com Young Jumper Championships. The Hampton Classic is proud to host this new event that showcases talented young jumping horses. Developed in cooperation with the International Jumper Futurity, the championships are designed to identify the most promising five and six-year-old show jumping prospects competing in the United States. Held on Sunday, September 3 prior to the $150,000 Crown Royal Grand Prix, the BestSelections.com East Coast League Finals will determine regional champions in each age division who will then be eligible for free air transport to compete in the "La Silla Cup for Young Horses" in Monterey, Mexico in October.

The Hampton Classic Horse Show also offers the Calvin Klein Show Jumping Derby, the Classic's $75,000 Challenge (offered to the horse and rider team winning both the Friday Qualifier and the Sunday Grand Prix) and Saturday's $25,000 Marlborough Galleries Grand Prix.

A False Sense Of Security

"Would have!" "Could have!" "Should have!" is the plea of the victims, mostly those who for varied reasons, all seemingly logical, were lulled into a false sense of security. One may think that our homes are our castles, or perhaps we live in the Hamptons, and/or the Upper East Side. Nothing bad ever happens there right? Wrong, this is simply not reality. It is the fantasy of the "lull." The bad guys count on this state of mind when we are taken completely by surprise and unnerved to our very fiber. We would like to believe (be lulled) that our municipal police departments will insulate and protect us from such occurrences, and they do the best they can. However, one only has to review the statistics about crimes that remain unsolved, primarily because the only motive was the unchallenged opportunity to commit them. Thus the pro-active need to now add to our arsenal of attorneys, accountants, doctors and therapists, a whole new breed of highly trained private "protection specialists." No, it is no longer the off duty local cop we give a few dollars to, to hang around as security for the evening.

Creating a new standard of excellence in an industry plagued with the "good old boys" mentality has not been easy. But to the NYSS Group's managing partner and former corporate CEO Stephen J. Browand, a can-do, pro-active attitude prevailed. Having personally lived through a long term protection situation with his family and the three supposedly "top rated" private security firms each failing to meet even the minimum standard in his opinion, it was time for a critical change. So with his military background in naval intelligence, proven keen business acumen and an intuitive sense of consistently getting the job done right the first time, every time, the New York Security Service (NYSS) Group was born. Steve, in conjunction with his two partners Danny Marrone and John Heckmann both highly decorated former New York City detectives, knew they could build a security specialist and investigative group that would rise the industry standard for client excellence. As Steve pointed out: "The success of any business rests squarely on the shoulders of all members of its team and its leadership." So the recruitment and selection process for active NYSS agents is crucial. "Typically, we only actively list approximately 10% of potential law enforcement candidates we interview, basically the 'best of the best'; then you factor in their mandatory certification in diplomatic protection, plus a key individual specialty in any one of numerous areas: communications, surveillance, electronic counter measures, "SWAT", investigations, etc., and that percentage then quickly drops to 5%." One then questions: Don't you run out of agents with such a high standard and a limited qualified resource pool? To that Steve simply stated: "Absolutely! If the NYSS group can't staff a detail with our own team of highly dedicated specialists, we simply will not accept the assignment."

"We formed this group to create an uncompromised standard for an absolute fail safe protection and security team. So if we would not entrust our own families with a team, we would not entrust a client's. We will never, ever, compromise a client's "total well being" by delivering anything less than 100% of what we commit to do 100% of the time. In our profession, you simply can't appeal it, or get a second opinion. You only get one chance, and when you consider what could be at stake, we simply cannot allow for any margin of error."

When asked about their rates for such detailed and uncompromised security and confidentiality, Steve responded: "We certainly don't cost as much as your average attorney, per hour, yet we provide so much more. The NYSS Group is only for those who demand the very best and would never compromise their well being or that of their families with anything less than what our very own President receives every day."

EAST END FARMING WITH JOE GERGELA

In 1996, the Federal Agricultural Improvement and Reform Act (FAIR) – in effect through the 2002 crop year – was passed. At nationwide farm policy field hearings over the past six months, more than 400 producers have submitted oral and written testimony to the House Agricultural Committee for consideration regarding the next farm bill. Last month, agricultural leaders and commodity representatives joined the dialogue in Washington, DC. There is, however, no consensus as yet. Putting together a comprehensive policy for an industry as diverse as agriculture isn't exactly a quick and easy project, but these hearings are certainly a great way to begin. Every farm organization was heard, and the committee has hundreds of statements to use in order to reach a beneficial consensus.

"Where farmers have been most helpful is in confirming their support for the flexibility of production decisions, tax fairness and broader trading markets for American agricultural products," said House Agriculture Committee Chairman Larry Combest (R-Texas). "The value of these discussions with producers is that in the absence of giving us a consensus for any specific policy change, they have signaled their confidence in the committee members' efforts to work for a consensus."

As Congress considers a follow-up to FAIR, Farm Bureau is encouraging lawmakers to continue to allow producers planting flexibility and the opportunity to respond to market signals. AFBF President Bob Stallman said Congress must not throw away the market-based policies of the 1996 farm bill while working on ways to improve income, and stressed to the committee that a countercyclical safety net as a supplement to Agricultural Market Transaction Act payments is also a key concern.

"The harsh realities of the current transformation of production agricultural is smaller numbers of producers of traditional crops and increasing numbers of farmers are competing in specialized, niche markets," Stallman said. "Hence the need for establishing a permanent program for countercyclical payments for farmers and ranchers." This particularly affects Long Island, with its growing numbers of vineyards and greenhouse operations.

The Senate added $900 million in emergency spending to recently passed agricultural appropriations legislation already containing more than $1.1 billion in disaster relief, but indicated that was the end of such aid this year. Congress has approved over $22 billion in special agriculture funding since 1998.

Some lawmakers have specific ideas about how the next farm bill should look. Sen. Dick Lugar (R-Ind) and Rep. John Boehner (R-Ohio) recently introduced the Rural America Prosperity Act, which includes tax relief provisions on health care, capital gains, estate tax, and risk management, as well as regulatory relief and trade reform.

"Farm policy can be compared to a stool with two legs for support," Tim Cansler, an American Farm Bureau director of governmental relations, explained. "The Lugar-Boehner bill is a response to Farm Bureau's call for provisions for that third leg that will give farmers and ranchers stronger reinforcement."

This bill would allow for immediate full deduction of health care costs for not just farmers, but for all self-insured; provide a $500,000 exclusion from capital gains on the sale of a primary residence or farm; eliminate estate taxes over ten years; create new risk management tools; require that the General Accounting Office assess the overall cost of complying with federal regulations; and authorize fast-track trade negotiations and an agricultural exemption from economic sanctions. Some of these items will have a positive, direct effect on most of us. The bill in its entirety will benefit every U.S. citizen by helping the agricultural industry to survive and flourish; ensuring us the perpetuation of an affordable and safe food and fiber supply.

Joseph Gergela III is executive director of Long Island Farm Bureau

WHEN IN NEW YORK

By Allison Wiley

The end of summer is rapidly approaching, so make the most of your remaining time in the Hamptons with the ultimate in water and beach "toys." Here are a few of the unique items sold exclusively at Hammacher Schlemmer (57th Street/ Lexington and Third Avenues) to make your last days here more enjoyable:

WATER TOYS:

Boatless Water Skier – This one-of-a-kind powered tri-hull craft offers water skiers the unprecedented capability to ski without a boat. This device was conceived for the express purpose of providing a reliable means to practice maneuvers and train at your convenience. It is nearly eight feet in length and is operated solely by the skier, using a push-button panel built into the towline handle, which is included. It can also be used for other water sports such as slalom skiing, barefooting, sky skiing, boarding or wake boarding and is safe for fresh or salt water usage. Save the cost of a boat and buy this device for $9,999.95.

Only Propulsion Snorkel & Diving Mobile – Currently used at beachfront resorts, this patented diving propulsion mobile is the only one of its kind engineered for both snorkeling and deep sea diving in fresh or salt water. Faster and with a longer running time than other propulsion vehicles, this mobile will operate for nearly an hour of continuous use powered only by a 12-volt rechargeable battery. The battery, a "T" bar seat and instructions are included. This $2,495 unit will provide hours of seaside fun.

Lake and Sea Pedal Boat – This water craft may look like a speedboat, but it is pedal powered. In this two-seated vessel, one person pedals while the other passenger simply enjoys the ride. It is suitable for use in harbors, bays, ocean inlets and lakes. It can even be used as a tender for transportation to an off shore boat. The boat has a quiet, smooth-drive system that makes movement through the water effortless, and it can reach a pedaling speed of 4 mph. The sailboat-type hull positions the operator down inside the cockpit behind a protective windshield that guards against wind, waves and spray. A canopy provides shelter from the sun and the rain, and a shelf holds towels and electronic equipment as well as food and beverage. It even has a diving platform. Sit back and enjoy the ride for only $3,495.

25 Foot Floating Trampoline – Whether it's tied to a dock, anchored in the lake or towed behind a jet ski or boat, this floating trampoline will provide hours of summer fun for adults and children alike as its waterproof surface is the perfect platform for performing jumps, flips, bounces and somersaults before plunging into the water. Keep the kids amused for hours for only $5,999 (there is also a fifteen foot floating trampoline).

Pedal Powered Surfbike – A new water sport for fitness and fun, this vehicle rides like a bike on top of the water. It resembles a surfboard, is noise-free and environmentally friendly, and is just as easy to ride as a regular bike. The surfbiker can go up to six miles per hour while burning up to 9.1 calories per minute for a no-impact workout. It can also be modified for children. Join the newest fitness craze for only $1,499.95.

Two Person Submarine – This craft allows you and a friend or two to cruise underwater at up to 4 knots without cumbersome diving equipment. The cockpit is entered easily by swimming into an opening in the back of the vehicle's hull and you sit on fold-out seats enclosed in an airtight cabin. A constant air flow is provided by regulators and CO2 is bled off. The sub has a maximum depth of 130 feet and can be towed on a trailer behind almost any car and launched from a boat ramp. The two person sub costs $62,900 and the three person sub costs $72,000.

The Amphibious Car – Used worldwide, this 6 wheel drive, two-passenger vehicles moves easily through marshes, fields, mud and snow, up 45-degree hills and even through lakes, rivers and ocean swells. This go-anywhere vehicle can be yours for only $9,999.95.

Baby Swan Pedal Boats – Rising an impressive six feet above the water, this is the same statuesque pedal boat used at theme and amusement parks. It allows two people to safely cruise around ponds and lakes while getting a bit of exercise. Made of extremely lightweight fiberglass, the boat can carry up to 600 pounds in water as shallow as two feet deep. Join the swans in Town Pond in East Hampton for a mere $3,999.

The Learn-To-Sail Boat – Learn the basics before investing in an expensive sailboat. This craft, designed by a manufacturer of award-winning sailboats, has a built-in teaching system that allows the novice to quickly and safely master the sport of sailing. This virtually indestructible craft provides greater stability and visibility (transparent sail) than other vehicles. The boat is also equipped with a color-coded pie chart which provides that when the colors are aligned, the sailor knows the wind direction, headings and how to trim the sails. A small investment of $1,599.95 will ensure smooth sailing.

The Big Wheeled Trike – Previously only found in amusement parks and resorts, this giant one or two person water cycle is as easy to maneuver as a tricycle on oceans, lakes or any water surface. Rugged and durable, this vehicle will provide hours of fun for only $3,995.

BEACH TOYS:

All Terrain Two-Person Hovercraft – At speeds of up to 40 mph on an eight inch cushion of air, this hovercraft traverses water, ice, snow and sand. Its unique design provides enhanced stability for safer and more comfortable piloting and holds two persons or 650 pounds. Cut your transportation time in half for a mere $21,000.

INDOOR/OUTDOOR:

All Season Inflatable Entertainment Dome – The weather is no longer a factor in your entertainment plans with this Hammacher Schlemmer exclusive. This dome is so spacious it was originally used in Europe to cover an entire rugby field. The 3,600 sq. foot dome can provide shade and shelter for a tennis court, privacy for a hot tub or swimming pool, or offer a spacious, protected, unobstructed area to entertain which can be heated or air-conditioned for year round usage for only $60,000.

Another rainy weekend forecast? It doesn't matter when you have your own Artificial Sun. Floating as high as fifty feet in the air, this 2600-watt artificial sun will illuminate a 15,000-20,000 square-foot area with soft, ambient lighting. This 6 1/2 foot sun ball is suitable for indoor or outdoor use providing a sunny day for picnics, sporting events, lawn parties, pool decks, tennis courts or banquet halls. The sun ball will remain aloft for up to eight hours while attached to a tether cable and, when not in use, it can be folded and stored in a lightweight vinyl case. After all, $4,500 is a small price to pay to ensure a sunny weekend.

Get the most of what remains of summer fun in the Hamptons with these purchases through Hammacher Schlemmer's catalogue or at their website, www.hammacher.com.

POLICE BLOTTER

A woman was asked to leave Gordon's Restaurant on Main Street in Amagansett. She was apparently very offended by the request, even though the restaurant had closed and everyone in her party had finished their meal, so she responded by allegedly slapping the maitre d' across the face. She left shortly after, and no charges were filed.

Also in Amagansett, some shady miscreant hit the Sunglass Hut, and made off with five pairs of shades worth a cool $500.

Other shady sheisters have been visiting the Sunglass Hut in the Bridgehampton Commons. Sixteen pairs of glasses have gone missing in two separate incidents in the past two weeks.

A Sag Harbor woman, who had reported her dog, Lionel, missing, found him locked in her basement bathroom. Apparently, an unknown dog catcher entered the Sagg Road residence through an unlocked door. No charges have been filed, but a report of trespassing has been filed.

A Southampton man picked up a rider at the Green Derby, and gave him a ride to Southampton Village.

Later, the good Samaritan noticed his wife's cell phone was missing. The next day, the phone thief called the man and said he would sell the phone back to him for $20 if he met him back at the Green Derby. He made the wiser decision to call the police instead.

In another case of hitch hiking gone bad, a Bridgehampton picked up a rider at Chinda's Restaurant in Noyac. While making a brief stop at King Kullen in Bridgehampton, he left the rider in the car with the keys. When he came out, the car was gone. At 6:15 a.m. police spotted the stolen car, and arrested Frank A. Brown, 29, of Southampton after stopping him on the Bridgehampton-Sag Harbor Turnpike while allegedly driving said stolen car. He was charged with driving while his ability was impaired, and for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle in the third degree.

A duck killing dog was reported by a guest at the Shinnecock Mist Resort. The guest had watched as the marble colored pit bull chased and caught two of the aforementioned ducks. The owner of the dog said that Burton or Burt Dog as his friends call him, does not bite people. Ducks apparently, are another story.

Last week we reported a naked man making obscene gestures on Two Holes of Water Road. This week, a woman was jogging on the sordid street, when some Casanovas in a pickup truck began following her, whistling and making comments. She apparently was not impressed.

Michael Heinke, 29, of Southington, Connecticut was allegedly seen urinating... at Caudio's Clam Bar in Greenport... on the dance floor... at four o'clock in the afternoon. Security asked him to leave several times, but he refused of course, so security tried to forcibly remove him. He resisted, and allegedly bit two of the security guards. Police arrived, and Heinke allegedly spit on one of Southold's finest. After being subdued with pepper spray, he was transported to Eastern Long Island Hospital, where he allegedly fought with doctors and nurses, and while being searched, he allegedly went after another officer, causing a laceration to the officer's finger. Heinke was charged with resisting arrest and assaulting a police officer in the second degree.

Jason Pagni, 29, of Wallingford, Connecticut, a friend of Mr. Heinke mentioned above, was arrested after he was asked to leave Eastern Long Island Hospital several times and refused.

Dan's LETTERS

SINCE WAY BACK

Dear Dan,

Most of all, I wanted to let you know how much I have enjoyed Dan's Papers since way back (Martell's, no traffic days, no multiplex movie houses, and of course my old club days when we ran LeMans). Your track record has been "outstanding" for years and years of enjoyable, unique, informative, humorous and sometimes bizarre writing. Congratulations on your 40th year! Thanks for still going strong!

WANTS MORE

Dear Dan,

Please keep running stories like "Ghost Town." I am a resident of Center Moriches and love to hear the history of our area. This particular story fascinated me, and I hope someday to visit this area in East Hampton. Any stories on C.M.?

DOES SALLY FLYNN EXIST?

Dear Dan,

I have been on Shelter Island for almost every summer of my life- twenty-one years. I read your paper every week and find it well written, interesting and helpful. I only have a problem with "The Sheltered Islander" column by Sally Flynn or whoever writes it. I'm fairly sure that Sally Flynn doesn't exist.

She's not listed in the phone book. But, then again, that might be for fear of all the people who would love to duct tape her whiny mouth shut. Rather, I suppose she is some annoying woman who has been dreamt up in an effort to make Shelter Islanders seem like isolated hicks living on some sand bar far away from civilization and culture. I especially like the mention of booze cruises in backyard whalers, or as she refers to the occasional boat on a trailer in the driveway - "cruisers." The column is not amusing and neither are the complaints that it revolves around. I like your paper, but why don't you get rid of this poorly written and frankly stupid column?

MENDING WALLS

Dear Dan

I hope you will join me in a personal crusade to BAN PRIVET. Let me explain. I live down a small dirt road with only five houses on one-third acre lots. When I used to turn down this road, I would pass my neighbor's yard, with its giant oak tree replete with a tree house and a very long swing. Often my neighbor was sitting on the doorstep, and we would wave. My neighbor is gone and so is the bucolic view. No sooner was the house under contract than up went the privet! It is now about six feet, but eventually it will reach a towering height, effectively protecting my neighbor from the innocent gaze of strangers.

I know what you're thinking: "What's wrong with privacy, and maybe they don't want to wave to YOU." But then how can you explain the privet that surrounds multi-acre lots where you where you would need a telescope to see who is cruising by on their bicycles? So desperate are these homesteaders to secure their privacy that they obliterate their own view to adjacent farms.

My backyard used to run into the yard of my neighbor—a retired farmer who would spend endless hours in a deck chair staring into the expanse. But the new owner, fresh from the 'burbs, has put in the privet. The irony, of course, is that he denies himself exactly what he has denied me—the freedom and amity of yards that run into one another, unimpeded by physical boundaries. Thanks to privet, perceptual space is limited to whatever is recorded in the files of the Country Clerk's office. Poaching, it would seem, applies to the simple pleasure of eyeballing somebody else's property.

Let's face it: we've lost the open farmland to the developers. But must we also lose the remaining view to privet?

In "Mending Walls," Robert Frost questions his neighbor's assumption that "Good fences make good neighbors." Frost writes:

Before I built a wall I'd ask to know
What I was walling in or walling out,
And to whom I was like to give offense.
Something there is that doesn't love a wall...

PRIME SUSPECT- PLUM ISLAND

Dear Dan,

Regarding your piece on Plum Island's Animal Disease Center. I was surprised you didn't bring up this mysterious West Nile disease our local mosquitoes are carrying— Plum Island seems a prime suspect to me! It wouldn't be the first time the U.S. government used it's citizens as guinea pigs.

YOU'RE PAYING HOW MUCH TO SELL YOUR HOME?

The commission that your real estate company is charging to sell your house is probably a hefty percentage of what your house is worth. At Help-U-Sell®, we have a different approach: a fee-for-services structure that allows you to choose the services you need - and pay for only the services you use. With the Help-U-Sell concept, you could save thousands of dollars when you buy or sell your next home.

Village Realty

Where clients become friends and houses become homes.®

We've been around for decades and we've put countless families into houses they love. And we've made countless friends while we're at it.

But this is a new century. We have a new generation of owner management.
And we want to make all the good things we've been doing ever better.
So here's what we plan to do:

When you buy a house through Village Realty, you will get two truly valuable benefits absolutely free. No one else offers anything like this.

1. You will get a free consultation with a leading interior designer who will help you with anything from spiffing up colors to re-arranging walls.
2. You will get a free consultation with a leading landscape designer who will help you change your new yard into a dreamy garden.

We have thousands of listings right now, ranging from $225,000 to more than $19 million. Chances are there's something in-between for you.

Please stop in and visit our beautiful new office at 52 Main Street, East Hampton.
We'd love to show you around and give you a shiny apple, just to get to know you.
